SNOOK, 2301 East Hill Road, Willits, CA 95490. Thanks, Ruby, for the data you sent on Henry Co., VA, and for the 1790 Census enumeration of HUDSONs.

CORRECTION: A. D. HUDSON was b. 1917, instead of 1817 as shown on page 68 of BULLETIN #47.

QUESTION: "The photo of Young Milton HUDSON and his wife, Amanda, on page 53 of BULLETIN #46 was remarkable in its quality. Had it been touched up in any way?" -- Bob HURST, Panama City, Fla.

Vitra says she needs proof that George⁶ HUDSON was son of David⁵ HUDSON, and proof that Solomon⁵ BRITTINGHAM of Ross Co., Ohio, was the son of Eliza⁴ HUDSON and Samuel BRITTINGHAM. She adds that one grandmother of Samuel BRITTINGHAM was Esther Elizabeth WILLIAMS. Can anyone add to this?

ASSOCIATE BOOK EDITOR's NOTE: Two volumes of Virginia Records are ready for printing but we hit a snag when the "reasonable" quote turned out not to be dependable and the "second best" quote was over $30.00. The Tulsa printer who did our other books shuts down from May to Sept. (the school business year). Progess soon, I hope. Don't despair!

Inaccuracies & inconsistencies: Is there another Solomon Brittenham?

After reviewing the timeline and details for this Solomon Brittenham, I believe there are errors in this research. I have found documentation that Leah/Leath, wife of Solomon, was granted a widow's pension from the Revolutionary War. Realistically, could this Solomon have fought in the war if his birthdate is correct as 1765? The Military file records that as his birthdate, Did he really have two families? One of the Revoluationary War records found in Ancestry data files, actually gives a marriage record for Leah Brown as a wife, with an 1783 marriage date. I must find the original source for this, as this is the date recorded as marriage to Elizabeth Unknown. I question the accuracy of this record as it states the marriage took place in Fairfield County, OH; and in 1783 there was no Fairfield County, OH.

My earlier resources state that the children of his first family were born in Maryland or Delaware, which had various boundries during those years. My ancestor, Love Brittenham records state was born in Delaware, although on subsequent census records, her children list her birthplace as Indiana. Census records should Solomon Brittenham was in Ohio as early as 1820.

Was Love a daughter of this Solomon, or a daugher of his son Solomon, married to Kissiah Timmons? I originally had her placed in the son's family, but that is questionable.

For some reasons, Love and her husband William Elijah Holloway, moved to Hamilton County, IN, and were living there in the 1840 census. There were several of the Brittenham's there, including the 2nd Solomon, which could be her brother - or her father. BRICK WALL.

About FamilySearch Pedigree Resource File:

The Pedigree Resource File is a new lineage linked database of records available on compact disc containing family history records submitted by individuals through FamilySearch Internet Genealogy Service. Family information is organized in family groups and pedigrees and includes submitted notes and sources. Many charts and reports can be printed from this data. Each disc contains about 1.1 million names. With the publication of every five discs, a master index for those discs will be published and packaged with that set of discs. With the publication of every 25 discs, a master index for those discs will also be published and packaged with that volume of discs. Discs may be purchased as sets or volumes.

Please Note:

Submitter information is provided to help in the coordination of personal family history research. Use of this information for any other purpose, including marketing, advertising, or commercial solicitation, is strictly prohibited.

About FamilySearch Pedigree Resource File

The Pedigree Resource File is a new lineage linked database of records available on compact disc containing family history records submitted by individuals through FamilySearch Internet Genealogy Service. Family information is organized in family groups and pedigrees and includes submitted notes and sources. Many charts and reports can be printed from this data. Each disc contains about 1.1 million names. With the publication of every five discs, a master index for those discs will be published and packaged with that set of discs. With the publication of every 25 discs, a master index for those discs will also be published and packaged with that volume of discs. Discs may be purchased as sets or volumes.

SPECIAL REPORT: RAISING DOWNTOWN

Various efforts failed to bring new life

By Ken de la Bastide
The Herald Bulletin

ANDERSON — Over the past 50 years there have been several efforts by government officials and the business community to breathe new life into downtown Anderson.

Back in the 1970s, Meridian Street was the heart of the local business community. Retail shops and restaurants lined the street. Downtown's hustle and bustle meant that the biggest problem was parking.

J.C. Penney's, Sears, Montgomery Ward, Hoyt Wright and Woolworth's were all within easy walking distances in the downtown area, which also boasted dozens of locally-owned businesses.

That was before Penney's, Sears and Montgomery Ward moved to Mounds Mall, fire destroyed Woolworth's and Hoyt Wright closed.

The staff of Timmons Spot to Shop poses outside the downtown Anderson business in 1931. Through much of the 20th century, downtown was a thriving commercial district.

With the loss of the major retail outlets, downtown traffic diminished and smaller businesses closed or relocated to the Scatterfield Road bypass. In 1977, many downtown streets also became one way.

Today, the downtown area is home to only a few remaining retail stores and a handful of restaurants. After those who work downtown leave for the day, few people can be found in the area.

Over the years Anderson's downtown has lost hundreds of housing resources, with the closing of the Tower and Delaware Court apartments.

In the mid-1960s, the idea first surfaced to convert Meridian Street into a pedestrian mall. In 1970, business leaders picked the development of a mall as one of the key downtown issues.

In the 1970s, with the advent of Mounds Mall and strip malls in the city, the administration of former Anderson Mayor Robert Rock attempted to make Meridian Street a pedestrian mall with a serpentine streetscape.

When that effort failed, a team of planning experts came to Anderson in the 1980s to complete the Regional/Urban Design Assistance Team (RUDAT) study of downtown Anderson. They recommended construction of a downtown conference center and hotel. The study also advised that the White River should be accessible and a focal point of the community.

But with the decline of the local automotive industry, which had once employed nearly 25,000 people in Anderson, the hotel and conference center idea quickly faded.

The last concentrated effort to revitalize downtown came during the administration of Mayor J. Mark Lawler in the 1990s. The city contracted with Fortune Management of Kokomo to rehabilitate downtown Anderson's existing storefronts to lure new businesses.

The city and four local banks invested $4 million in the project, which ended in 2004 when Fortune Management's Anderson Preservation LLC went bankrupt.

ALEXANDRIA

Witnesses: Man man aimed gun at woman

Intimidation and criminal recklessness among charges

By Jack Molitor
The Herald Bulletin

ALEXANDRIA — A man is being held without bond after allegedly pointing a rifle at a woman on Thursday evening.

Randolph D. Kelley, 48, of Alexandria, was arrested at a relative's house in Summitville by Madison County sheriff's deputies a few hours after the incident, according to Madison County Sheriff Ron Richardson. Kelley faces felony charges of intimidation, pointing a firearm and criminal recklessness in connection with the incident, which reportedly happened at about 4:30 p.m. Thursday on Marion Street in Alexandria.

According to Richardson, witnesses told police that Kelley and the woman were arguing earlier in the day, and when she tried to leave the home with some friends, Kelley told her she wasn't going anywhere.

While they were in the home on Marion Street, Kelley picked up a muzzleloader and the woman asked her if it was loaded. He allegedly said, "You know it." She then walked out of the front door, and Kelley followed behind. As she approached a friend's vehicle, someone in the vehicle told the woman that Kelley was pointing the rifle at her from behind.

The woman got in the vehicle, and the other witnesses again asked Kelley if the gun was loaded, and he reportedly said, "It's always loaded." As the car drove away, the witnesses heard a loud bang. Kelley had apparently shot the rifle into the ground, causing rocks and dust to fly up in the air and hit the car on the way down.

Kelley then went back inside the home, gathered some belongings and left for Summitville. Richardson said Kelley was arrested after he told officers his side of the story.

The story of a dog...

Every now and then, I read about them in the news. Special pets.

One dog alerts his owners to a blaze in the house, saving them from a fiery death. Another dog curls up next to an unconscious man, using his own body heat to keep the man from freezing to death. Then there was the dog that dialed 911 ...

Undoubtedly, some dogs are heroes.

Take our dog Sherman, for example. We aren't 100 percent certain, but we think he might be a hero. Or have an eating disorder.

Sherman is a mixed breed, half Pekinese, half poodle. He is known as a Peek-a-poo. Or Poo-Pee, as I prefer. He has kinky white hair with a few pale apricot spots. His bushy tail curls up and over his back. He has big brown eyes and a serious underbite.

Sherman is a playful, yappy little beast. He does everything fast, his four paws always a blur of motion.

The story of a dog...

Every now and then, I read about them in the news. Special pets.

One dog alerts his owners to a blaze in the house, saving them from a fiery death. Another dog curls up next to an unconscious man, using his own body heat to keep the man from freezing to death. Then there was the dog that dialed 911 ...

Undoubtedly, some dogs are heroes.

Take our dog Sherman, for example. We aren't 100 percent certain, but we think he might be a hero. Or have an eating disorder.

Sherman is a mixed breed, half Pekinese, half poodle. He is known as a Peek-a-poo. Or Poo-Pee, as I prefer. He has kinky white hair with a few pale apricot spots. His bushy tail curls up and over his back. He has big brown eyes and a serious underbite.

Sherman is a playful, yappy little beast. He does everything fast, his four paws always a blur of motion.

A few years ago, my mother-in-law, Hazel, came to live with us. She had Alzheimer's disease.

Hazel took an immediate interest in Sherman. She began to see him as a toddler and viewed his care as her personal responsibility. He became her hairy grandchild.

Sherman's interest in Hazel bordered on obsession. Before long, he wasn't happy unless he was snuggled on her lap, following at her heels, or stretched out at her feet.

One day, I noticed that Sherman was getting fat.

"Hazel," I began, "don't give him table scraps. It isn't good for him. He's starting to waddle."

"Oh, I NEVER do that!" she assured me. "I know it isn't good for him." She was, of course, lying through her teeth. Or simply forgetting. I noticed Sherman standing behind her, glaring at me from between her ankles. He was chewing something that resembled Taco Bell.

As Hazel's mental faculties deteriorated, Sherman's attachment seemed to grow. He became over-protective and lost his playfulness. He was downright hateful to the rest of our family.

One day I picked him up, a friendly gesture on my part.

He growled at me.

I whispered in his ear. "When she is gone, you will be tried for treason. You could be facing the gallows."

His growl turned into a snarl, and his upper lip curled, exposing his underbite and crooked teeth.

"And you can forget the braces and porcelain veneers I was going to surprise you with," I added. His breath smelled like oatmeal and whole-wheat toast, with a hint of real butter.

One afternoon I noticed Sherman prancing at door. "Hazel, take him outside to potty," I instructed.

It was a warm summer day. I watched them out the open window. I had to keep an eye on Hazel, particularly since that morning she had climbed out her bedroom window, wearing three dresses, and crossed Indiana 37 on foot. I also wanted to make sure she didn't approach our neighbor Chris and claim she was being held at gunpoint in our house. Chris is a state trooper and probably has tear gas.

But above all, I didn't want Hazel to demonstrate any potty techniques for Sherman.

I watched the two of them. Hazel stood behind Sherman. She leaned over and lifted his front paws off the ground and stood him upright, helping him balance on his hind legs.

ANA NEWS

dvances udget plan

full-day kindergarten and property tax relief.

The plan is expected to pass the Republican-ruled Senate and set up set up late-session negotiations in hopes of reconciling the proposal with one approved by the Democrat-controlled House.

Meeks, R-LaGrange, said Senate Republicans drafted their plan with goals of having a balanced budget, steering more money to schools and universities, paying off $285 million in back payments to local governments and universities, growing the state's surplus and limiting spending.

"I'm proud of this budget," he said, noting that it would not increase state taxes. "I think it does exactly what we set out to do."

House Speaker Patrick Bauer, D-South Bend, said the Senate GOP budget has good aspects, and despite some differences in the House and Senate plans, "I think there is going to be a meeting of the minds."

Through his spokeswoman Jane Jankowski, Republican Gov. Mitch Daniels said the Senate budget was "really the starting point for achieving an honestly balanced budget."

"Big and tall!" she encouraged.

And then she waited for Sherman to urinate standing up.

I watched. Sherman didn't growl, or snarl, or show his crooked teeth. He just stood there patiently, his pink belly exposed, brown eyes squinting in the sun.

"Big and tall!" Hazel repeated enthusiastically.

A minute passed. Sherman the Turncoat was in an awkward position, which I was enjoying. Finally I felt a little pity.

"Hazel, he won't go unless he's on all four paws."

She processed my comment in her cobwebby brain and released the dog. "But I'm afraid he'll run away."

Sherman trotted about 16 inches away and relieved himself, then scampered back to her feet.

"He's not going anywhere," I assured her.

Later that evening, I sent my son to Hazel's room to fetch Sherman. We had to rescue him at night — otherwise she would stay up all night nurturing him in some manner.

Sherman growled.

"What were they doing in there?" I inquired. I smelled Sherman's breath. Chicken and rice.

"Well ... Grandma had him balanced over the toilet, trying to get him to go."

I had to ask. "Was he complaining?"

"Nope. Wasn't making a sound."

And so it was. Sherman indulged her when she carried him around in her arms like a baby for a day. He forgave her when she didn't recognize him after his haircut. He quietly endured it when she dangled him over the commode.

And Hazel cared for Sherman, as he became her sole purpose in life while her disease robbed her of everything else.

She is gone now. The old Sherman is back. He received a pardon for his crimes against the family. He eats dry dog food.

Maybe he was nothing more than a table-scraps opportunist.

Or maybe he was a hero?

The Lord's Prayer

Our Father who art in heaven, Hallowed be Thy name.
Thy kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth, as it is in heaven.
Give us this day our daily bread.
And forgive us our debts, as we forgive our debtors.
And lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil.
For Thine is the Kingdom, and the power, and the glory, forever.
Amen.

About FamilySearch Pedigree Resource File:

The Pedigree Resource File is a new lineage linked database of records available on compact disc containing family history records submitted by individuals through FamilySearch Internet Genealogy Service. Family information is organized in family groups and pedigrees and includes submitted notes and sources. Many charts and reports can be printed from this data. Each disc contains about 1.1 million names. With the publication of every five discs, a master index for those discs will be published and packaged with that set of discs. With the publication of every 25 discs, a master index for those discs will also be published and packaged with that volume of discs. Discs may be purchased as sets or volumes.

a bigger buck next time he goes hunting.

Although he has talked about other issues, the clarion call of his campaign has been illegal immigration. But he's quick to show that he's not a racist, flashing pictures of his "half-Polack, half-Puerto Rican" godson, and his now-deceased best friend, who was Mexican.

"I bet his parents were illegal," he said, holding the picture.

Jozwiak has dark hair, and his standby, incredulous facial expression is obstructed by a disarming pair of eyeglasses. Although he appears to be small in stature, he was once a competitive bodybuilder — there are several "Mr. IU" trophies in his home, and the back porch doubles as a weightlifting room.

Jozwiak, 42, is the oldest of seven children — five sisters and one brother — and grew up in Marion, the son of a "medical technologist" and a librarian. He spent five years at Indiana University earning a degree in finance.

After graduating in 1989, Jozwiak couldn't find a job because of the buildup to the Gulf War, he says. He moved to the west side of Indianapolis and worked as a roofer and salesman. He was also an Army reservist for six years.

In 1997, Jozwiak moved to Anderson because, he says, it was located close to Indianapolis and had a "blue-collar edginess" that reminded him of Marion. He's lived in the same house along Raible Avenue since then.

"I'm Polish," he says. "When

LOCAL RESIDENTS SPEAK ABOUT DIFFICULTIES OF BEING VISUALL

By LYNELLE A. MILLER
lynelle.miller@heraldbulletin.com

Barbara Kyle has run into too many glass doors to count and numerous unmarked columns. She once even wore a yellow outfit for an entire year, thinking it was orange.

Kyle is the first one to make fun of her odd behavior, though.

"That's just what comes with not being able to see," said the 61-year-old Anderson resident as she laughed. "I put an apple down yesterday and still haven't found it yet."

Kyle may be visually impaired but does not let the condition get her down.

Tiger

while Alexandria finished 18-of-45.

The Tigers opened the game on a 9-4 run, before Frankton center Lauren Hendricks asserted herself down low on the blocks. She helped the Eagles get back into the game by hauling down 15 rebounds, six of which were offensive. The Eagles took advantage at times early and scored some second chance points, but also missed some easy put backs as well. Frankton also almost doubled Alexandria's output on the glass at 35 to 18, but the Tigers won the turnover battle which proved to be the difference.

"She (Hendricks) gives us a good effort every night," Brobston said. "I never have to say a word. I think our scorekeeper tallied 11 missed shots under the basket."

Bre Shively scored a team-high 14 points for Frankton, eight of which came in the fourth quarter.

With the win, Alexandria goes over the .500 mark at 4-3 and, more importantly, has its first win in the Central Indiana Conference.

Frankton falls to 3-5 on the season and 0-1 in CIC play.

"Sometimes you don't play your best and still win," Howell said.

Frankton's Lexi Seager, Lauren Hendricks (44) and Bre Shively (40) battle Alexandria's Brook Sayre (45) and Rachael Sayre for a rebound Friday night during the Central Indiana Conference game at the Tigers gym.

vs. Hamilton Heights and Dec. 20 vs. Alexandria — will be played at Lapel's hoops home since the mid-1950s.

As of the girl-boy doubleheader against Liberty Christian on Dec. 29, all high school games will unfold inside the gymnasium at the new Lapel High School.

If Crandall is attempting to exit the old facility in style, Friday's performance served as a good start.

Limited to four first-half points, the 6-1 guard-forward warmed up following intermission with 15 points spread over the final two quarters. Able to burrow his way inside for points as well as knock down the perimeter shot, Crandall was the matchup for whom the Raiders had no answer.

"Trent is a hard matchup," said Howell. "He can post up, and he can go outside. He hit some big shots for us."

Particularly in the third stanza. With the Bulldogs holding on to a slim 21-20 halftime advantage, Crandall's hot hand provided Lapel much-needed breathing room

About FamilySearch Pedigree Resource File:

The Pedigree Resource File is a new lineage linked database of records available on compact disc containing family history records submitted by individuals through FamilySearch Internet Genealogy Service. Family information is organized in family groups and pedigrees and includes submitted notes and sources. Many charts and reports can be printed from this data. Each disc contains about 1.1 million names. With the publication of every five discs, a master index for those discs will be published and packaged with that set of discs. During the formative years the publication could have been likened to the itinerant preacher, moving about from place to place. The publication's first two issues were printed at Rome City, Indiana, and later moved to Indianapolis. In 1882 the little printing office had a temporary home in Cardington, Ohio. The following year the trail led to Bucyrus, Ohio. In 1884 the paper was moved to Williamston, Michigan, and here things began to pick up with Warner and his associates experimenting with the publication of a few tracts and a songbook. In 1886 the entire works--office material, machinery and household effects of the staff—were loaded into a single freight car and hauled away to Grand Junction, Michigan, where the colony stayed for twelve years. By this time the movement was becoming a fixture in different states, and so-called camp and grove meetings, something of a hallmark of the movement, began. It was in June, 1887, that Enoch E. Byrum, who had chanced to read a few copies of The Gospel Trumpet at school, met Warner at a camp meeting of the Children of God at Bangor, Michigan.

Warner and a few associates at the meeting, having been attracted to Byrum, induced him into joining the publication as publisher and business manager. In June, 1887, he assumed his multitudinous duties associated with the four-page, semi-monthly paper, which included everything from running the office and handling mail to setting type and running the press. Almost a decade later, N. H. Byrum, brother of Enoch, joined the company.

After the death of Warner in Grand Junction, Michigan on December 12, 1895, a stock company known as the Gospel Trumpet Publishing Company was formed. Later, when the organization was quartered in Moundsville, West Virginia, all outstanding stock was recalled and cancelled, the Gospel Trumpet Publishing Company was dissolved, and the organization changed to a voluntary association having no capital stock. It was then incorporated as the Gospel Trumpet Company.

From time to time, as might be expected within a group of such dedicated people, areas of discord showed up. However, the original idea of D. S. Warner was never compromised and after his death the work went on under the able leadership of Enoch E. Byrum, who had in the meantime become editor of the periodical.

It was in 1898 that Moundsville, West Virginia, appeared to be a more advantageous location for the Gospel Trumpet Company. This time it required nine freight cars, two passenger coaches, and one baggage car to transport the workers and their worldly goods. The camp meeting, too, was moved to Moundsville along with the publication. The moves were not yet over, however, and the fruits of this small band of dedicated religionists were later to be felt more significantly in Indiana than in West Virginia.

The Anderson of those times was a bustling village and a fertile field for promoters. The Anderson Booster Club, which had been instrumental in reviving Anderson's flagging economy in the face of the double debacle of the loss of gas and the panic of 1907, had, in the course of its routine of contacting promising firms that might be enticed to Anderson, sent a brochure to the Gospel Trumpet Company of Moundsville, West Virginia, setting forth the attractions and advantages of the community. The Gospel Trumpet Company, while definitely not interested in any enticements offered its workers, glimpsed a new area of promise, mainly in the form of a tract of advantageously located acreage on high, level ground less than a mile from Anderson's courthouse. Unhappy with its situation in Moundsville, the firm considered the invitation from Anderson most opportune.

When the community discovered that the publishing house, as it was constituted in that particular era, was not an enterprise providing openings for an appreciable number of Anderson workers, but strictly an operation carried on by a colony of dedicated people who "lived-in" on company premises and were not

About FamilySearch Pedigree Resource File:

The Pedigree Resource File is a new lineage linked database of records available on compact disc containing family history records submitted by individuals through FamilySearch Internet Genealogy Service. Family information is organized in family groups and pedigrees and includes submitted notes and sources. Many charts and reports can be printed from this data. Each disc contains about 1.1 million names. With the publication of every five discs, a master index for those discs will be published and packaged with that set of discs. With the publication of every 25 discs, a master index for those discs will also be published and packaged with that volume of discs. Discs may be purchased as sets or volumes.

Anderson Auto Mall adds U-Haul dealership

ANDY KNIGHT
THE HERALD BULLETIN

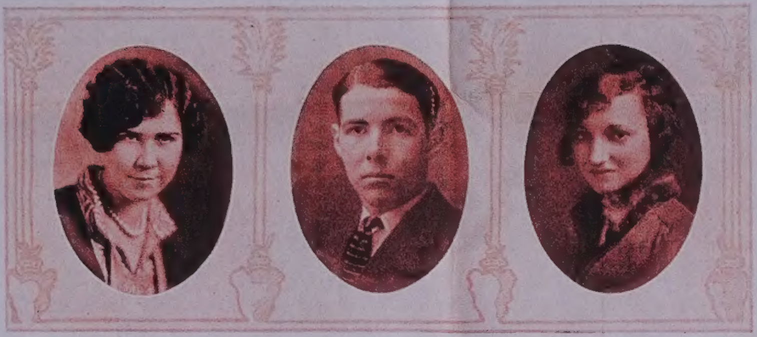
ANDERSON – The new Anderson Auto Mall recently became home to another dealership, this one belonging to one of the country's largest moving companies.

In March, the auto mall reached an agreement to host a neighborhood U-Haul dealership. The doors opened at the end of that month, and the feedback has been positive.

"We're getting great response from people coming into the location," store manager Rami Fakhoury said. "We're trying to revive this part of the city and do something that's going to make the economy better in this area."

The dealership offers essential services including truck rentals, trailers, towing equipment, moving supplies and in-store pickup for boxes.

U-Haul, with more than 17,000 dealers nationwide, stresses partnerships with independent dealers to create



JOSEPHINE STEVENS

Commercial Club 4.

"Jo" has a host of friends (one especially, outside of school). Her name may not be Stevens very much longer.

ERNEST HALE

"Ernie" is almost as much a "sheik" as his brother "Ike" was. He seems to always be having a good time.

LAVONA A. MURRER

Dramatic Club 2; Commercial Club 4; Home Economics Club 4; Pres. of Advisory 4.

Lavona seems to be the main interest in the life of a young man called Charles. She is a lot of fun and everyone likes her.

RUSSELL HUDSON

Pres. of Class 1, 2; Hi-Y 1, 2, 3, 4, President 3, Vice-President 2; Glee Club 4; Operetta 4; Football 3; Student Council 2, 3, President 3; Assistant Manager of X-Ray 3, Business Manager 4; Editor of Annual 4.

A consensus of opinion is that Russell is outstanding for his ability to take the initiative. He has been the main-stay of all our class efforts during all four years.

JUANITA JONES

Girl Reserves 2, 3, 4; Glee Club 1, 2, 3, 4, President 1; Dramatic Club 3, 4; Latin Club 2, 3, 4, President 4; Senate 1; Honorary Society 3, 4, Sec.-Treas. 4; "Fire Prince" 2; "Bells of Beaujolais" 4; Annual Staff 4; X-Ray Staff 4.

So often those who obtain so high a scholastic ranking find little time for other tasks. But this is not true of Juanita who could always be relied upon to help carry on any job, big or little, and enjoy her share of social popularity.

WILLIAM V. SINES

Yell Leader 3, 4; Student Manager Football Team 3; Usher 3; Hi-Y 3; Glee Club 3, 4; Operetta 4; Dramatic Club 3, 4; Chorus 1, 2; President Boosters' Club 4; Junior Reception 3; Annual Staff 4; Vice-Pres. Advisory 3, 4.

Bill is distinctly in a class by himself. He is the popular wit and comedian of the school. He is called upon constantly to put over our undertakings.

Virginia H. Wagner

FARMINGTON HILLS, Mich. — Virginia Hudson Wagner, 95, died May 30, 2006, at the Botsford Continuing Health Center in Farmington Hills, Mich.

She was born and lived for 85 years in Anderson, Ind., and moved to Botsford Commons in Farmington Hills, Mich., to be near her two daughters. She was preceded in death by her loving husband, Robert Wagner, a retired General Motors executive, and by three siblings.

Virginia was graduated from Anderson High School at the age of 15, and became one of the youngest students at DePauw University. There she received a bachelor of arts degree in English and education in 1930, after which she taught Latin, English and German at Anderson High School.

She was very active in community volunteer work in Anderson, serving as vice president of the WSCS; president of the Girl Scout Council; president of the Anderson Council of Women; and member of the Board of the Salvation Army. She was a founding member of the Anderson Urban League and served on its Board; and she was the first woman to serve on the board of the United Way. She was a member of the Beaux Arts Club, the Hawthorne Club, and founded the Botsford Commons Literary Club.

She always exhibited an adventurous spirit and had many highlights in her life. She played the fabled St. Andrews golf course; took flying lessons and soloed; rode a camel in Morocco and an elephant in Thailand in her mid-80s; rode her daughter's horse and her other daughter's motor scooter at age 85; and played golf at age 94. Mr. and Mrs. Wagner were avid bridge players, and both of them enjoyed earning master points over the years.

She is survived by her daughters, Suzanne Wagner (Richard) Davis of Bloomfield Hills, Mich., and Frances Wagner (John) Rehm of Clear Lake, Ind.; a sister, Frances Hudson of Denver, Colo.; four grandchildren, Kirk (Raphaela) Davis of Chicago, Kira Davis McManus of Denver, Colo., Jeffrey (Amanda) Rehm of Commerce Township, Mich., and Laurie Rehm (Michael) Caniglia of Seattle, Wash.; and seven great-grandchildren.

To celebrate her amazing life, a memorial service will be held at 11 a.m. Monday at First United Methodist Church of Anderson.

Visitation will be 9:30 to 11 a.m. Monday in the church's Wesley Room.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Margaret Ann Hudson Memorial Library at First United Methodist Church, 1215 Jackson St., Anderson, IN 46016, or the Botsford Continuing Health Center, 2nd Floor South, 21450 Archwood Circle, Farmington Hills, MI 48336.

before her disappearance, describing building snowmen.

The school papers Alejandra left behind are glimpses into the 10-year-old's dreams. She wanted to visit the White House and to have lunch with Britney Spears. She also wanted a dog and loved the canine-themed book, "Shiloh."

The collection of Alejandra's writing and artwork will be delivered to her parents and siblings, who did not attend the ceremony, Bell said.

Prosecutors in Delaware County are considering whether to seek the death penalty for Rios, 34, in the rape and murder of Alejandra, whose body was found in a rural gravel pit north of Muncie 11 days after she vanished from Fort Wayne. Allen County prosecutors already have said they will seek the death penalty against Rios, who is being held in Allen County Jail.

ATV driver sentenced to 15 years in prison in children's deaths

The Associated Press

KNOX — A judge sentenced a woman to 15 1/2 years in prison in the deaths of two children killed when a van struck the sled she was pulling with an all-terrain vehicle.

Bobbie Rowe, 43, of North Judson, was driving the ATV on a Starke County road on Jan. 23, 2005, when the sled veered into oncoming traffic. Six-year-old Jade Craft and her 2-year-old brother, Camdin Craft-Hadden, both of Walkerton, were killed.

under the influence and one count of obstruction of justice.

Her 19-year-old daughter, who was baby-sitting the children killed in the accident, was riding on the sled with them and suffered a broken arm.

After the accident, Rowe tried unsuccessfully to ride to the hospital in the ambulance with her daughter. She then drove the ATV back to her house, where she called her sister, arranging to pick up a jar of clean urine for the routine post-accident test, prosecutors said.

Hear Ye, Hear Ye!

The "Battle of Wits" is now in session. Master of Ceremonies: Mr. Intellect, who is the father of Germany's new order? Mr. Intellect: Adolf Hitler may be called the "proud Papa" of the New Order, but all orders can be cancelled.

Yes, it is the Honor Society members at one of their monthly meetings. The Honor Society has helped the war effort by discontinuing part of their meetings in order to save gas and tires. Still it is not impossible to have interesting meetings. Both juniors and seniors can be members of the Honor Society if they have at least one-half A's, not more than one-fourth C's and no D's or F's.

Under the fine guidance of their sponsors, Miss Margaret Mullendore and Arthur Shirey, the students of this club plan and carry out quiz programs, discussions, lectures, and debates.

Pioneer Cemeteries and Their Stories,

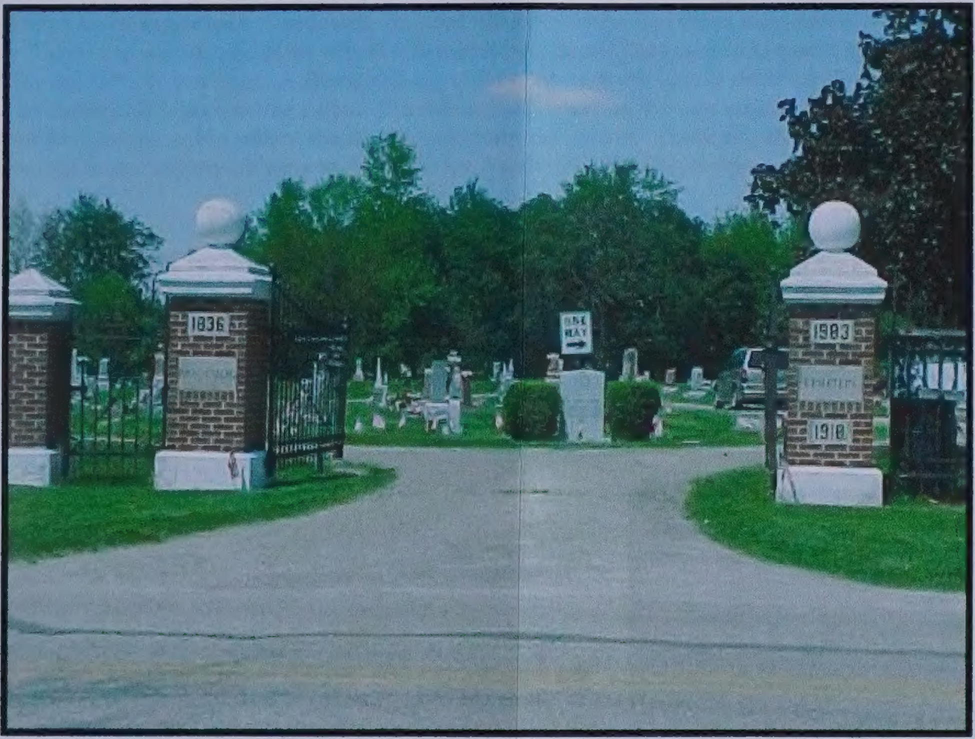
Madison County, Indiana

Bronnenberg Cemetery

Home Up

Union Township

Location: north side of North Street at the end of Skyview Drive, one-half mile off of SR 32 in Chesterfield



As the dates on the gateposts explain, this cemetery was begun in 1836 by the Bronnenberg family and is situated on at used to be a Bronnenberg farm. A brick Victorian farm house built a little later in the century by a member of the mily is located across the road just west of the cemetery. The Bronnenberg was a private graveyard even up until 95 when historian Samuel Harden was publishing The Pioneer. With the help of a donation in the early 20th century descendent Estes Bronnenberg, 1892-1966, the cemetery was incorporated into a burial business serving the town of esterfield and surrounding area. The stone pictured below left tells of his contribution and greets the visitor upon tering the gate.

IN MEMORY OF STA BRONNENBERG APPRECIATION OF HIS
FOR THE MAINTENANCE
CARE OF THIS CEMETERY

Frederick Bronnenberg, Sr., 1775-1853, patriarch of this prominent early Madison County family, was a veteran of the War of 1812 d is listed in the American Legion's Cemetery Record of Deceased Veterans. The Bronnenberg family is of German heritage with cestors having first settled in Pennsylvania. Frederick, Sr., and his seven sons and three daughters came to the Chesterfield area und 1821 from Ohio. There are two stories as to why the Bronnenberg family stopped in Union Township. One relates that they re originally headed for the Illinois territory. A Bronnenberg child died, and the family decided to stay where the child was buried. other states that one of Frederick's oxen broke down. Unable to travel further, he was aided by William Dilts who informed ederick of the disserted McChester cabin where the family could obtain shelter. Frederick Bronnenberg, Sr., was a tanner by trade d started the first tan yards in the county as early as 1831. Later, Frederick, Sr., also built a saw mill and a grist mill--some of the first lls in the county.

The family became wealthy, and he and his sons and descendents owned numerous farms in various townships. The rm that Frederick Bronnenberg, Jr., 1812-1901, inherited from his father included the ancient burial mounds of the lena people. Frederick, Jr., is credited with preserving during his lifetime those archaeological treasures. (For more on ederick,Jr., and Mounds State Park, go to Union Township page.) Both Frederick, Sr., and Frederick, Jr., their wives, rbara and Hulda respectively, along with numerous family members are buried at the Bronnenberg Cemetery along th neighboring Chesterfield settlers. The stone pictured above right, commemorating Frederick, Sr., and wife rbara, was placed at a later date in the old section by relatives.

As evidenced by the larger, fancier stones of the late 19th century, the old ction in the northwest corner of the Bronnenberg Cemetery holds many of the ore affluent members of the family. To the right of these stones is the White River. Beyond the trees and down the hill is the Timberline Campground.

The Bronnenberg Family

The Pioneers Of Madison & Hancock Counties by Samuel Harden 1895

THE BRONNENBERG FAMILY

To write the pioneer life of Madison County,Indiana without mention of the above family would be like visiting Massachusetts and not seeing Boston. The elder Frederick Bronnenberg came when a young man from Germany to Ohio with his wife,both of whom were born there about the year 1784. Mr. and Mrs. B remained a few years in Ohio where three or four of the older children were born. About the year 1819 or 1820 they started to move to Illinois and got as far as Madison County where Chesterfield now is,or in that locality,perhaps near the Mounds. Here one of the children was taken sick and died and they decided to go no farther west. A piece of land was entered and the family remained there till it has become numerous both in Madison and Delaware Counties and today (1895) the family down to the fifth generation own thousands of acres of land, the family has all those years been among the foremost in the county. The elder Bronnenberg was a tanner and started the first tanyards in the county which he operated near Chesterfield for years up to perhaps 1840. He died in 1853 buried on the Bronnenberg farm in Union Township near the town of Chesterfield. This burial place is a private one and is known as the Bronnenberg Cemetery, The following are the names of the children,part of whom were born in Madison County,Ind.; Frederick Jr. born in Ohio about the year 1814 is still living (1895) his wife Hulda died in Anderson in 1888 is buried in the Bronnenberg Cemetery, the following are the names of their children; William died in the army in 1863 he was in the 69th Indiana Volunteers, Ransom married Miss Seward daughter of Joseph Seward reside on the Mounds farm,the old home of Frederick Jr., Tude single at home in Anderson, Cal single at home. The family is republican and as the other members of the family are quite well off. John the second child settled on the edge of Delaware County,Ind. where he lived till his death about the year 1875, he raised a large family who live in Madison and Delaware Counties. Mrs.Carl Nelson who lived many years in Madison County was finally killed,it is said by Manis,near Terre Haute about the year 1880. Jacob lived many years in Richland Township four miles northeast of Anderson where he owned four hundred acres of choice land,he moved to the city of Anderson about the year 1882 where he died in 1891,his wife died in 1893,they are buried in the Anderson Cemetery where a fine granite monument marks their resting place,he was a democrat and served several years as County Commissioner,among his children are; Henry J., Samuel, Mrs.Thomas East, Mrs.Jackson and Sant. Henry owns 1,000 acres of land just south of Chesterfield and also served as County Commissioner for four years and twenty years as Trustee of Union Township,he was married near Chesterfield to Miss Faulkner,both living (1895),he is known as a modern Spiritualist and has given liberally to the society. Michael,the first child of the family born in Madison County in 1821 resides in Richland Township where he owns a choice farm on Killbuck. Carl resides on the old homestead where he lives in peace and plenty,he is also a Spiritualist and has given largely of his means ans land to the State Spiritual Camp ground,located on his farm just north of Chesterfield,he is a liberal gentleman,free thinker and a democrat,he has been married twice, of his children I know but little, one daughter married Mr.Cromer who has a fine farm and family and is a teacher of note,he was born in Delaware County. The Bronnenberg family was among the first to settle in the county and of the highest respectability. Am glad to give them this sketch in my book.

Hudson Printing family tradition

Hudson Printing Co. has been an Anderson business since the early part of the century. The family-operated, full-service printing business, has been in operation since 1918.

The company offers a full line of printing services, according to Jim Hudson, third generation manager of the operation since 1983. Services include art, typesetting, complete binding capabilities, mailing, and full color printing.

In operation since Harry E. Hudson opened the doors in 1918, Hudson Printing has always endeavored to satisfy every customer. Quality products, produced in a timely manner, is the goal of each employee at Hudson Printing, according to Hudson.

" Our focus is to satisfy our customers and do quality work," Jim said. "Because of the volume of work we do it is sometimes a challenge to meet customer deadlines and get everything done in time."

Jim is the third Hudson to manage the business, now located at 11 E. Ninth St. Jim's grandfather, Harry E. Hudson, opened and ran the business until his death. Jim's father, Harry E. Hudson Jr., took the reins in the late 1950s.

Jim Hudson's printing career began in high school when he worked part time. He started in the binding department then moved to camera and stripping. Next he learned press work and finally became manager of the operation in 1983.

Printing is a business constantly changing and it takes a lot of effort to keep up with the technology, according to Hudson.

"Pre-press technology is evolving so rapidly you have to work constantly to keep up," Hudson said. "Choosing the right technology and keeping up with new developments is a great challenge."

Although printing is a big part of his life, there is more.

Hudson and his wife, Sharon, have two children, Jason, 11, and Kristina, 8.

He is active in First United Methodist Church activities, coaches two YMCA basketball teams, coaches YMCA soccer, and is president of the Purdue Alumni Club of Anderson-Madison County.

This Hudson family bleeds printer's ink

By DeANNA L. MAY
H-B correspondent

Printing has been a long-time tradition in the Hudson family.

Seventy-one years after Harry E. Hudson started a small, two-man printing shop, Hudson Printing Co., 119 E. Ninth St., is still going strong.

Hudson died in 1977, but his son, Harry, and grandson, Jim, proudly carry on his legacy.

"The tradition of a family business gets handed down and bred into the fabric," said Jim Hudson, who started working at the plant in 1977.

"This is something both my father and I grew up with," Jim added. "We both started in the backshop and worked our way into different departments. We didn't come in and just sit at a desk. A piece of us is in every job that goes out of here."

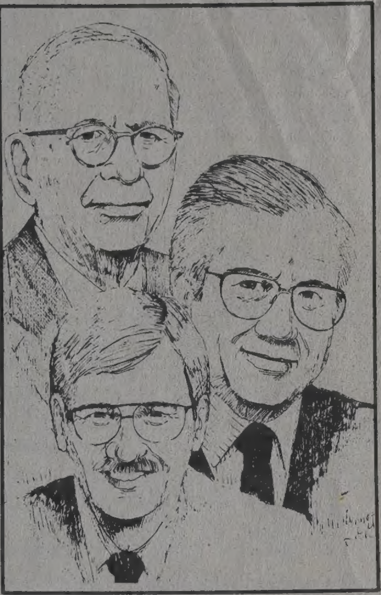
Back at the turn of the century, Harry E. Hudson was a farm boy from Perkinsville with an eighth-grade education. At 16, he began working in the pressroom at the Anderson Daily Bulletin. Later, he worked at The Anderson Herald as a pressroom foreman.

In 1918, he decided to start his own printing operation in a small, two-room building at 12th and Main streets. Using the tedious letter press process, where ink is spread on pre-set type and pressed on to paper, the company printed letterheads, envelopes and business cards for area businesses.

By the middle '20s, the business grew to a much larger shop with 22 employees, said Harry Hudson, who, as a young boy, learned the trade from his father during the late 1920s and early '30s. The company currently employs half as many people and does 10 times the volume using modern offset printing techniques.

Hudson's prize account in the late 1920s was the Stilson Co., a nationally known women's dress manufacturer based in Anderson.

"After I served in World War II, I came back to the shop in 1946 to decide if I was going to stay or work somewhere else," said Harry, who had attended Purdue University prior to the war, earning a degree in business administration.



"I received no pressure from my father to stay in the business," added Harry, who had an older brother who tried and failed in the family-owned business.

Harry said his first business call was on Delco Remy, an account that his father told him he could not win. But Harry's persistence, and a few "lucky breaks," won him that golden account. Hudson Printing now services many large accounts in Anderson and central Indiana.

Jim, who also has a degree in business administration from Purdue, said he also felt no pressure from his father to join the firm.

"In high school I wanted to become an engineer and work at Delco. But when I realized I was the last grandson that could carry on the business, I decided to try it," Jim said. "Once you get your hands dirty, it stays."

Jim said having a family-owned business does have its rewards — "being your own boss and doing things the way you want them done."

Also, it was during her administration that the campaign for Elwood's new building was launched and construction began.

Beeler found the job to be similar to any other — one can spend as much time as he or she wants to give. Because Beeler feels the Y is "marvelous" for the community, it was easy for her to give her time.

INTERMENT TO BE HERE

Lenex Gooding, one of Madison county's pioneer citizens, at the age of 77 years, is dead at his home, near Frankton.

Born March 9, 1829, Mr. Gooding settled on a large farm near Frankton in the early 40s and resided there continuously until the time of his death.

Of that sturdy type known so well to the early settlers, Mr. Gooding was one of the few remaining men who aided in building a fundation for the prosperous country of today.

Until a few weeks prior to his death he was able to do a day's work. Beside a wife, the deceased is survived by three children—Mrs. Isaac Bronnenberg and James Gooding, of Frankton, and J. D. Gooding, of this city.

Funeral services will be held at 10 o'clock Thursday morning at Ironwood Seminary church in Lafayette township, and interment will be made in the Anderson cemetery.

PROMINENT FARMER WAS ACCIDENTLY KILLED TODAY

Julian Murphy, Residing Four Miles Northeast of the City, Discovered Dead in His Barn.

3-4-05

The report reached this city this afternoon today that Julian Murphy, one of the best known farmers in the country north of Elwood, had been accidentally killed. The fact that the man had been in Elwood this morning and transacted business with a number of people, caused considerable excitement when the news was received.

Murphy lived four miles north and one-half miles east of Elwood. According to the reports that could be received over the telephone regarding the accident, he left the house to return to Elwood, to gt medicine for his wife, who was ill. Nothing was heard of him afterward and the fact being recalled that he had not been seen to drive away from the barn, caused a search to be made.

Murphy was found in the barn, lying on the floor dead, and it had likely been two hours or more since he received the injury that ended his life. The supposition was that he had been kicked by a horse.

There were many reports in circulation regarding the death, one that he had been killed in a runaway accident, and another that he was found in the barn lot with the harness over his arm, which led to the belief that apoplexy had caused his death.

The people of the neighborhood have all flocked to the Murphy home and it is impossible at this time to secure any accurate information, further than the above generally accepted story, which has been reported to the superintendent of police.

Murphy was about 45 years of age, and was one of the best known farmers of northern Madison county. He leaves a family.

DR. F. B. KING DIED LAST EVENING AT WINDFALL

3-3-05

The many friends of Dr. F. B. King were greatly shocked when the news came from Windfall this morning that he had died there last night at 7:30 o'clock. The Doctor recently removed from this city to Windfall and had just resumed his practice there, after having resided inElwood for the past two years. Advices from there say that he was seized with a bad spell of grippe, which later brought on gastritis, followed by kidney trouable and the combined disease were more than his physical nature could stand, resulting in his death. Dr. F. B. King as about 50 years old at the time of his death, and leaves behind him a wife and three children. He had many friends in Elwood and Windfall, and in addition to his profession of medicine, was also deeply interested in commercial pursuits, being one of the largest stockholders in the Austill Furniture company, which has stores in this city and at Linton, besides being interested in several other ventures of a like nature. During life he enjoyed a splendid practice at Windfall for several years and after moving to this city built up an enviable business here, but owing to ill health, moved back to his home town, hoping to regain his physical strength, but it proved of no avail. The remains will be interred at Homer, Rush county, but telephonic advice from Windfall at 1 o'clock this afternoon states that no definite arrangements had been made as to when the funeral would take place.

The infant child of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Hudson, residing in the New Lancaster neighborhood, was laid to rest in the Cook cemetery this afternoon. 3-9-05

Dr. F. B. King whose death occur red at Windfall on Thursday evening will be buried at Homer, Rush coun ty, on next Tuesday and the Masoni order of which the deceased was member, will have charge of the fu neral. Several of the doctor's friend in this city, will be in attendance.

About FamilySearch Pedigree Resource File:

The Pedigree Resource File is a new lineage linked database of records available on compact disc containing family history records submitted by individuals through FamilySearch Internet Genealogy Service. Family information is organized in family groups and pedigrees and includes submitted notes and sources. Many charts and reports can be printed from this data. Each disc contains about 1.1 million names. With the publication of every five discs, a master index for those discs will be published and packaged with that set of discs. With the publication of every 25 discs, a master index for those discs will also be published and packaged with that volume of discs. Discs may be purchased as sets or volumes.

Please Note:

Submitter information is provided to help in the coordination of personal family history research. Use of this information for any other purpose, including marketing, advertising, or commercial solicitation, is strictly prohibited.

Sue A. Davis

Dec. 19, 1940 – Aug. 22, 2007

POTTSBORO, Texas — Sue A. (Hudson) Davis, 66, formerly of Anderson, passed on to heaven on Aug. 22, 2007. She is now at peace with her Lord and her family that are already there.

She moved to Pottsboro, Texas, two years ago to be with her daughter, Sherry. She died there at home, peacefully holding Sherry's hand. She had fought a four-year battle with the horrible disease of Alzheimer's.

She worked at Abel's Restaurant for 22 years and was friends with everyone that walked through those doors.

Susie enjoyed playing cards, spending time with her grandchildren, watching Lifetime movies, volunteering at Bethany Pointe, playing bingo and the organ and helping anyway she could. While in Texas, she was known as the "shuffleboard queen."

She is survived by two daughters, Sherry (Mike) Wolf of Pottsboro and Camilla Davis of Anderson; nine grandchildren, Brandy Chamness, Brandon Boone, Heather Santos, Kory (Sabrina) Davis, Brady Maupin, Kaliegh Stone, Shawn Wolf, Hillary Verdin and Aaron Wolf; two great-grandchildren, Kylie Santos and Alexis Davis; two sisters, Dorothy Brown and Katie Smethers; her best friend of 39 years, Kay Riggs; her pets, Dusty and Snowball.

She was preceded in death by her husband, Robert D. Davis; a son, Larry D. Davis; her parents, Carl and Camilla Hudson; two brothers, Carl Jr. and Harry Hudson; and sister, Mary Alice Boundrant.

A memorial service will be from 12:15 to 1 p.m. Thursday at St. Matthew United Methodist Church, 1512 N. Madison Ave., with Pastor John Young officiating. Calling will be from 11 a.m. to 12:15 p.m. at the church.

Burial will follow services at Memorial Park Cemetery. Dinner will be graciously provided by the church following the burial.

Memorial contributions may be made at Community Hospital to the Alzheimer's Support Group of Anderson in Sue Davis' memory.

union's backing because of his experience and longtime support of firefighters in Congress.

"He's done more than vote right and be supportive — he's really carried our water and been proactive on our behalf," Schaitberger said. "And the other reason is that I really think he has the experience. Our board gave a lot of thought to this. He has the experience and the strength to lead this country in what we know is going to be tough times."

The endorsement was a significant boost for Dodd, a 25-year Senate veteran whose presidential bid has been almost completely eclipsed by the star power of Sens. Hillary Rodham Clinton and Barack Obama.

Dodd has remained in single digits in most national and state polls.

IAFF is the nation's largest and most influential firefighters union, with a history of supporting both Republican and Democratic candidates. Presidential contenders of both parties actively sought IAFF's backing this year, thanks to the union's organizing ability and firefighters' enhanced status in the public eye since their heroics after the Sept. 11, 2001 terror attacks.

God saw you were getting tired
And a cure was not to be.
So He put His arms around you
And whispered 'Come to me.'
A golden heart stopped beating,
Hard working hands now rest.
God broke our hearts to prove to us
He only takes the best.

their principals," Bryson said. "Everyone has their own cause, and that can get confusing, but that's not what this is about."

According to Occupy Wall Street's website, the movement's foundation lies in its people-powered, majority consensus goals to fight "against the corrosive power of major banks and multinational right."

Saturday's rally turned into more of an organizational meeting than a protest.

Anderson occupier Roland VanHorn talked about the movement's importance as U.S. presidential primary elections approach.

"What we're doing today isn't anything big,"

China bans lead paint in toys exported to U.S.

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — China signed an agreement Tuesday to prohibit the use of lead paint on toys exported to the United States.

Unveiled at the second joint U.S-China summit on consumer product safety, the pact was negotiated in the wake of the recalls of millions of playthings decorated with paint containing the toxic metal.

China has faced stiff pressure this year after an array of its exports, including toys, pet food ingredients, fish and jewelry, have been recalled over health and safety concerns.

In the pact, Beijing also pledged to step up inspections of its exports and take other steps to ensure that those products meet U.S. standards, said Nancy Nord, acting head of the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission. That will include joint efforts by the two countries to increase understanding of those standards among manufacturers and exporters.

The absence of such an understanding allowed paint suppliers to provide lead paint to companies making toys sold by Mattel Inc. and other companies, said Chuanzhong Wei, vice minister of China's General Administration of Quality Supervision, Inspection and Quarantine. Lead paint has been banned on toys made in the U.S. since 1978.

"That's why we decided we should intensify the exchanges between importers and exporters in the field of standards," Wei said, speaking through a translator.

day morning stabbing that Anderson police are still investigating.

Anderson police detective Mitch Carroll said Eric R. Hyatt, 24, was cut several times about 4:18 a.m. Friday while at a home in the 200 block of East 13th Street.

Carroll said Hyatt was staying at the home with his girlfriend. The two were sleeping when two men, Brian D. Lewis and Jerry A. Parrish Jr., came to the home. The two knocked on the door and forced their way in after the door was opened by another person in the home.

Euchre can't trump decades of friendship getting together

ANDERSON — Card clubs may be common, but few are able to celebrate 40 years of shuffling suits. Beginning as a simple one-night event designed to spend time with other adults, Carol Grace invited some friends over and a tradition was born.

"I felt a real need for adult conversation," she said, speaking to the group at the anniversary party last Tuesday. "Eric was 4 weeks old and the doctor would not release me to go back to teaching until he was 6 weeks. My lesson plans were written for the next five months, I had alphabetized all my spices, and the house was as clean as it was going to get."

Inviting over some high school friends and her sister-in-law, Grace threw such a great party that plans were made for a second one before the night was complete.

Submitted photo

Carol Grace (standing) stops to chat with Lora Rich (middle) as she plays euchre with Cindy Darlington (left) and Rita Smith (right) at the 40th anniversary of the card club.

"I came because I wanted to get out of the house," said Cindy Darlington, retired Anderson Community Schools elementary teacher and club member since the beginning. "My oldest was one and I needed some adult company. All of our kids are about the same age and went to school together."

"At that time I had three children," said Lora Rich, previous owner of Barr-Rich and also a 40-year club member. "This was time out with my friends from high school."

Not all the members have remained unchanged through the years. Playing euchre requires exactly eight participants to fill both tables. Some members had to leave the group due to other engagements or job relocation — and two have passed away, Rhonda Miller and Pam Risk.

All were invited to the anniversary celebration, which began with a dinner at Gaither's Family Resources and ended at Grace's home with desserts. Eleven women enjoyed the evening together, with candles lit for those gone but not forgotten.

After so many years together, the women have formed an extended family.

"Friends make me laugh when life is far from funny," said Grace, speaking to the group. "Friends hold me accountable and have made me a better person for it. We don't choose our families, but friends are totally up for grabs ... and I'm glad I chose you."

Athena is the inspiration

16 local women will compete for prestigious award

Athena was the Greek goddess of wisdom, war, the arts, industry, justice and skill. The favorite child of Zeus, she was fond of a certain area of Greece and helped its people out by offering an olive tree that they could use for food, oil and wood. Today we use the phrase "offering an olive branch" as a sign of peace.

The area she liked so well became the city of Athens.

Strong, accomplished, professional women, modeled after the traits of Athena, are honored each year by Athena International. In Anderson, one of 16 nominees, all profiled in this special section, will receive the Athena Award on Tuesday. On hand that night at Anderson Country Club, 7 p.m., will be Lt. Gov. Becky Skillman as the featured speaker.

The Athena Award began in 1982 when Martha Merz was asked to serve on the board of directors of the Lansing Michigan Regional Chamber of Commerce.

She was the only woman on the board and discovered that only once in the past was a woman honored by the chamber. This didn't reflect the community, she thought. She sought ways to honor outstanding professional women and the award was born.

It didn't take long for women to be honored in Madison County. The first Athena Award was given in 1988 with Mary M. Porter as the first recipient. The award was given annually until a three-year period, 2002 to 2004, when the award wasn't given. This year Myers Autoworld and The Herald Bulletin became sponsors of the event.

The 16 women nominated for this year's award represent a variety of fields, including health care, youth, economic development and farming. They work tirelessly to make the community a better place for its residents.

To be nominated for the award, women need to:

- Demonstrate excellence, creativity, and initiative in their profession.
- Provide valuable service by contributing time and energy to improve the quality of life for others in the community.
- Actively assist women in realizing their full leadership potential.

Sounds like Athena herself.

The Herald Bulletin wishes all these women the best on award night, knowing that the 15 who are not chosen will continue the excellent work that brought them the nomination for this prestigious award.

About FamilySearch Pedigree Resource File:

The Pedigree Resource File is a new lineage linked database of records available on compact disc containing family history records submitted by individuals through FamilySearch Internet Genealogy Service. Family information is organized in family groups and pedigrees and includes submitted notes and sources. Many charts and reports can be printed from this data. Each disc contains about 1.1 million names. With the publication of every five discs, a master index for those discs will be published and packaged with that set of discs. With the publication of every 25 discs, a master index for those discs will also be published and packaged with that volume of discs. Discs may be purchased as sets or volumes.

About FamilySearch Pedigree Resource File:

The Pedigree Resource File is a new lineage linked database of records available on compact disc containing family history records submitted by individuals through FamilySearch Internet Genealogy Service. Family information is organized in family groups and pedigrees and includes submitted notes and sources. Many charts and reports can be printed from this data. Each disc contains about 1.1 million names. With the publication of every five discs, a master index for those discs will be published and packaged with that set of discs. With the publication of every 25 discs, a master index for those discs will also be published and packaged with that volume of discs. Discs may be purchased as sets or volumes.

OUR FRIEND TOM

There always seems to live,
In every neighborhood,
One friend who stands out from all the rest
Because he is so good.
He doesn't shout and pout,
His kindness is freely given,
Making all feel proud
That in "his" neighborhood they live.
A good person to ask and learn from,
With everybody calling him
"Our neighbor Tom."

Now he probably has his worries and sorrows,
Same as we have ours, too;
But he shoulders his troubles better
Than us other fellows do.
All the children dearly love him;
For advice to him they run.
And he always treats them
Like a daughter or a son.

I'm proud to say we have such a neighbor;
And on his word we can depend.
Not afraid to borrow from you,
And as eager to repay the lend.
We don't know how friends like him get here,
Or where they may come from,
But we all sure appreciate him--
"Our friend Tom!"

Written of Tom Hudson by a neighbor, in the summer of 1945.

irector Jack Hayes
e storm was given a inary label as an the second-highest ssigned to twisters

based on the damage they cause.

Hayes said the storm had winds of 190 to 198 mph. At times, it was three-quarters of a mile wide.

Some of the most startling damage was at St. John's Regional Medical Center, where staff had only moments to hustle their patients into the hallway. Six people died there, five of them patients, plus one visitor.

The storm blew out hundreds of windows and caused damage so extensive that doctors had to abandon the hospital soon after the twister passed. A crumpled helicopter lay on its side in the parking lot near a single twisted mass of metal that used to be cars.

Dr. Jim Riscoe said some members of his emergency room staff showed up after the tornado with injuries of their own, but they worked through the night anyway.

"I spent most of my life at that hospital," Roscoe said at a triage center at Joplin's Memorial Hall entertainment venue. "It's awful. I had two pregnant nurses who dove under gurneys ... It's a testimony to the human spirit."

Once the center of a thriving mining industry, Joplin flourished though World War II because of its rich lead and zinc mines. It also gained fame as a stop along Route 66, the storied highway stretching from Chicago to Santa Monica, Calif., before freeways diminished the city's importance.

The community, named for the founder of the area's first Methodist congregation, is now a transportation crossroads and manufacturing hub. It's also the hometown of poet Langston Hughes and "Gunsmoke" actor Dennis Weaver.

Major employers in and around the city include electronics manufacturer LaBarge Inc., colleges such as Missouri Southern State University and hospitals and clinics. Agriculture is also important to the economy.

Some of Pregnancy Plus' mid-ives speak enough Spanish to get em through particular medical ocedures. Varajas can stick with patient throughout treatment, en birthing, if the patient needs
r requests it.

To avoid interfering with treat-ent, Varajas emphasizes to atients and doctors alike that she just the "voice in the room" and s not qualified to examine patients r prescribe treatment.

Health Insurance Portability
Accountability Act provisions equire that Varajas sign confideniality forms each time she inter-rets for a patient, but that doesn't eep her from having to be the earer of bad news.

"It can be especially difficult if you ave to tell a family member that heir relative is dying," Varajas said.
But when you offer the service in heir language, they feel more com-rtable to express their needs."

In Loving Memory

The Lord's Prayer

Our Father who art in heaven, Hallowed be Thy name.
Thy kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth, as it is in heaven.
Give us this day our daily bread.
And forgive us our debts, as we forgive our debtors.
And lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil.
For Thine is the Kingdom, and the power, and the glory, forever.
Amen.

The Lord's Prayer

Our Father who art in heaven, Hallowed be Thy name.
Thy kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth, as it is in heaven.
Give us this day our daily bread.
And forgive us our debts, as we forgive our debtors.
And lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil.
For Thine is the Kingdom, and the power, and the glory, forever.
Amen.

Gilbert M. Hudson lived a long and enjoyable life

By MELANIE D. HAYES
melanie.hayes@heraldbulletin.com

Gilbert M. Hudson lived a long life because of his look on life and 30 years of retirement.

"He was pretty content just taking things as they were. He was not much of a guy who worried about things that he had no control over. I think that that had to do with his longevity," said his son Thomas Hudson.

Gilbert Hudson died on Friday at age 91 from pneumonia.

His son also feels that the reason behind his long life was medical help and genetics. Four of his sisters, all who died of natural causes, lived into their 90s.

"He was a miracle of modern medicine. He had several things happen to them. He was treated and he survived," Thomas Hudson, 59, said. He had a stroke, a broken hip, a couple of heart attacks, and a few other problems. "Modern medicine is wonderful. His health was fairly decent until about a year ago."

The Anderson native graduated from Anderson High School in 1932, and two years later hired on at General Motors.

"He started on production, became a tool maker, and then went on salary, starting as a foreman in the tool room, and then on to engineering," Hudson said.

In 1974, the plastic engineer retired from General Motors, beginning a 30-year retirement where he relaxed and enjoyed himself.

"He took it easy. He played golf when he was able to. He started playing when he retired and played right up until the time he couldn't play anymore."

He played mostly at the Edgewood Country Club, and sometimes at the Killbuck Golf Course.

"He just liked to play. After he quit playing he became an avid fan of watching golf," Hudson said. "His favorite player in recent history is Tiger Woods, of course."

Another highlight in Gilbert Hudson's retirement was when he and his girlfriend, Betty Tucker, got together in 1980, and for about 15 years spent their time traveling and sight-seeing, before she died several years ago.

"They took cruises. They went to visit her children in San Francisco, or wherever they lived at the time. They went to Alaska and Panama, (where they saw) the Panama Canal," Hudson's son said. "They did a lot of traveling together. That was very enjoyable for him."

Downtown Anderson jamming this summer

By KEN de la BASTIDE
ken.delabastide@heraldbulletin.com

There will be plenty of activity this summer at the Anderson Town Center in an effort to draw people to the downtown area.

The Anderson Indiana Main Street group (AIM), in conjunction with the Anderson Parks and Recreation Department, has events scheduled in June, July and August.

Lori Sylvester, AIM coordinator, said the group is starting off slowly this year.

"Instead of having vendors, we are going to promote the downtown restaurants," she said. "We can foresee in the future that there will be bands and vendors setting up on the plaza.

"We want people to come downtown to socialize and enjoy the activities," Sylvester said. "We want to build on it year by year."

The activities start in June with Lunch Entertainment Concerts. Starting Wednesday, there will be weekly entertainment on the Town Center plaza stage from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. always put stakes out and roped off the ring. Pointing to wood gathered earlier, or what they call fire lays, he said the first was called a log cabin because of the way it was constructed. The next a teepee and the third a lean-to.

De Fur and others bent down and lit the kindling in each. One was started using a 9-volt battery touched to some thin strands of steel wool. While the Webelos learned how to gather and start fires, the Boy Scout instructors worked with parent leaders to teach them fire skills that they could share with their troops when they returned.

The younger scouts, grade-one Tiger Cubs, earned rank by learning such things as the Tiger Cub Motto, scout sign and salute. Wolf Cubs, grade 2, recited the scout promise, pack law and handshakes, said Karen Dulaney, Cub Scout activities chairwoman of Sakima District.

Bear Cubs, grade 3, earned their Whittling Chip after going through pocketknife training. They also learned to tie knots. Webelos learned first aid, advanced knot tying and fire building.

"It's a fun way for Cub Scouts to earn advancements toward their ranks," Dulaney said. "It's the first major event for the Cub Scouts for the 2006-2007."

The Boy Scouts from area troops came to act as role models, Bell said. Often the younger boys will look up to the older boys.

"We have to set an example for them," Bell said.

Jeffrey Reeder, a Boy Scout Tenderfoot, 11, said many times it helps having the Boy Scouts there training because it gives the younger Scouts a chance to get away from their parents. Often parents are troop leaders.

Another tenderfoot, Kaleb Auker, 11, said that training others was also a good way to learn new things. When he and others teach the Cub Scouts, they have to be sure they know what they are talking about.

assigned a personal shopper to help them find the right sizes and make the process more efficient.

Harrison says people have asked her how they can show they need a free coat, but she just tells them the process isn't that complicated.

"It's anyone that needs a coat — we just use the honor system," she says. "They don't need an ID card or proof of need like a welfare card or anything."

Consequently, one person may leave with only one coat. So if a whole family needs coats the whole lot must show up.

Volunteers abound on give-away day with more than 1,000 coats to move. Thanas says some of his dry cleaning crew gets involved too.

"I know last year we had a couple of people that helped out, and now more people have showed interest in going," Thanas said. "We thought it'd be a great opportunity to help out."

process operates, you know.

A significant portion of the populace likes the idea of games of chance. Putting up a little for a chance to win a lot sends them to the store for lottery tickets, drives office football and basketball pools, funds horse racing at Hoosier Park and draws people to casinos on the Ohio River, Lake Michigan and soon at French Lick.

Others believe the whole process is evil, feeding the greed and robbing the pocketbooks of those willing to bet the rent money on something that isn't likely to pay off for them, creating a whole class of compulsive gamblers in the process.

Me? I've bought a few lottery tickets in my lifetime, about enough to count on the fingers of one hand. The closest I came to winning was matching one or two out of six numbers.

Anyway, I don't need to gamble. I'm told I'll be receiving $10 million pretty soon. Well, maybe. I'm a finalist in the Publisher's Clearing House sweepstakes.

It's easy playing the PCH sweepstakes on the Internet. I keep getting more entries telling me I'll win if I turn in the winning number by such and such a date. Of course, it doesn't tell me I actually have the winning number.

At least it doesn't cost anything. I have yet to order a magazine or any of that other stuff they tout. And I'm assured on each entry that I don't have to order to win and it will not increase my chances of winning. Well, it does take a minute or two of my time every time I enter, but that's no serious inconvenience for a retiree.

So I probably have a dozen chances to win the big prize. That's a dozen out of several hundred million, I presume. I haven't gone out and purchased a Corvette or BMW just yet or signed up for an around-the-world cruise.

As for gambling, I'll leave that up to the broker who handles my 401(k) funds. Gambling advocates keep telling us the stock market is a gamble, you know. Only thing is, the CEOs of the businesses selling the stock are doing their darnedest to show a profit, and if they do the stockholders all are winners, especially if the economy is strong. If it isn't, hang on, it'll get better someday. Unless you bet on Enron.

It's a lot better gamble than being a sure loser by playing one too many games of chance.

I'm reminded of the Father Dowling Mysteries TV show several years ago when the priest, as a diversion to a covert murder investigation, wagered $5 on the craps tables. He won, and kept winning, drawing the attention of the casino bosses as his winnings mounted into five figures. Finally he put the whole thing on one more roll of the dice.

When Sister Stephanie rejoined him, she asked what happened. "I lost $5," Father Dowling replied.

officials lauded the accomplishments of the General Motors division and beamed their pride at having such a company in town, Guide employed 6,500 people. When it closes, 1,475 will lose their jobs, including some 150 at the Guide headquarters in Pendleton.

Looking over the timeline that accompanies this story, Guide has a storied history as part of General Motors in Anderson. It's decline, that has been years in the making, mirrors that of other GM plants in the city. Guide grew and flourished in a different era, one that had very little competition as GM owned better than 40 percent of the auto market.

Now, with Toyota poised to take over the world, GM and its spinoffs are no longer the giants they once were. Once, however, they were kings.

BEGINNINGS

Guide was the brainchild of three Wisconsin men: Hugh Monson, William Persons and William Bruce. They began making lamps for vehicles at a place called Badger Brass Co. in 1906 in Kenosha, Wis. They moved this operation to Cleveland, Ohio, and called it Guide. Guide was moved to Muncie as part of Delco Remy in 1923 and found its way to Anderson in 1926.

General Motors was on the move as the largest auto manufacturer on the planet and Guide was busy making headlights and taillights for Chevrolets, Cadillacs and Pontiacs.

This all came to an abrupt halt on Dec. 7, 1941, when Japanese planes launched the attack on Pearl Harbor. All over America, factories converted their normal production to the war effort. Guide churned out weapons, nosecones for aircraft and shell casings.

Richard Bowman is the historian of all things Guide. He retired from there in 1984 after 43 years in the plant. He now spends his time at the Madison County Historical Society overseeing a huge inventory of Guide literature and photos.

On Thursday, he'll address the Anderson Noon Kiwanis Club at First United Methodist Church with a history of Guide.

When Guide moved to Anderson it took over the Jenny Electric Co. building but, in expansion, was built on less than solid ground.

"The entire area was woods and swamp," Bowman recalled. "The water was three-feet deep. Kids would pull 12-pound bass out of it."

The acreage had been owned by O.C. Crimm who raised hogs on the soggy land. Guide pulled out the trees and filled in the swamp.

Around 1948, the company purchased a large hydraulic press that had to be put in a 12-foot hole in the factory. Bowman was in charge, laying out the area where the press would go. One night he was awakened at 3 a.m. by third shifters who were digging the hole.

When Bowman arrived the workers were outside.

"They hit a hog wallow," Bowman laughed. "You could smell it all over town."

The dug it all out and got the press installed, but "we had to wear breathing apparatuses."

Bowman was there during the war years and remembers that all able-bodied men were in the service. There were some elderly men in the plant, and women, but more people were needed. Frank Allis, the personnel director, advertised for new workers but no one responded.

So some Guide officials went to Fort Benjamin Harrison in Indianapolis where soldiers were returning with shell shock and other maladies. Guide offered them jobs but the base commander said he wasn't sending his soldiers into the factory. "But I'll do what I can," Bowman recalls the commander saying.

The commander put out the order that all soldiers at Fort Ben would be restricted to the base, meaning they couldn't spend their off time in Indianapolis.

Bowman said the next day, 22 Indianapolis prostitutes showed up at Guide for work. "The (base restriction) shut down every whorehouse in Indianapolis," Bowman said.

The ladies raised eyebrows in the plant. "They were saturated with nicotine," Bowman said. The women couldn't smoke on the production line due to flammable materials, so they'd disappear every hour into the ladies washroom. Bowman said he'd come in to get them, banging on the stall doors to get the women back to work.

When the restriction order was lifted two days later, 18 of the prostitutes returned to Indianapolis. "Four stayed for a good many years," Bowman said.

In 1947, Guide began using plastic on its taillights, but things didn't turn out too well the first year. The plastic manufacturer colored the taillights red but, once on the road, the sun bleached the color out.

When GM controlled 40 percent of the auto market in the 1960s and 1970s, Guide was at its peak. The challenge, Bowman said, was the yearly changeover in equipment because of model changes. This cost millions of dollars. Each year, around June, some machines were replaced, others were modified.

In the 1960s, said Bowman, Guide got into the business of manufacturing carpet for cars. "It was beautiful carpet," said Bowman. The carpet was used initially for GM executives' Corvettes. After two years, Guide tried to get a contract to mass-produce the carpet, but the executives shot it down.

Bowman explained that the wife of one of the men drove the Corvette in stiletto heels. The heels punctured the carpet and she had a hard time coming unstuck. End of carpet.

MIDDLE PERIOD

When Ollie Dixon came of age in the 1960s he had two employment dreams: one was to be an attorney, the other an electrician. In 1967, he took a job at Guide. He worked six years in production and 30 as a skilled trade electrician, getting his wish.

"I wanted to be a GM employee," said Dixon. "At Guide, I thought I could build up the money to go to law school. But I was married and had two small children. I had to take care of my family."

Working at Guide was "almost like a second home," he said, adding that there was plenty of work and overtime available. He remembers that Guide, along with Delco Remy, Nicholson File and other Anderson factories employed nearly 40,000 workers in the 1960s.

Dixon said he made about $2.65 an hour when he started at Guide, taking home about $90 a week. "Back then that was an excellent wage," he noted. In fact, he added, "I think $2.65 to $3 an hour back then did more than $30 an hour today."

Dixon, currently an Anderson City Council member, was always active in United Auto Workers Local 663, serving nearly two full terms as president and various other positions.

"On the whole, I enjoyed the work I did, enjoyed the people. I gained a lot of friends."

The 1980s saw a change. "Things got rough in the '80s under the Reagan administration. Foreign competition started taking over. We were losing our work overseas."

A series of layoffs hit Guide in the 1980s and 1990s as GM had built up a huge inventory and dealers were afraid car sales would plunge if there was a recession. GM announced the idling of 21,900 workers in 1990.

In 1992, after yet another name change, Inland Fisher Guide was put on the "troubled parts list," not because of quality but financial losses in the previous two years.

Dixon was serving as 663 president when the transition came in 1998. GM spun off Guide into its own company. Everything Guide produced went to GM, but a new work force didn't operate under the GM umbrella.

"I'm proud of the people there," Dixon said. "They did their best." He said he hopes that they take advantage of retraining program and that some might find jobs at other GM plants. "These employees are well experienced, familiar with the work, procedures and policies (of GM). Hopefully it will happen."

As much as he enjoyed his work at Guide, Dixon is wary of the future of the auto industry.

"It's a scary situation, quite alarming."

THE 99ERS

Kelley McVey remembers a different Guide, one that was no longer part of GM. She was hired in May 1999, part of a group that came to be known as the 99ers.

McVey insists, however, that she hired in as a GM employee. "I was paid by GM, all benefits. A year later it was Guide pay."

When GM separated from Guide, most of the old timers, those who were hired when Guide was part of GM, were looking to transfer to other GM plants. The new management, McVey said, told the 99ers to stay away from the old timers because they would "lead us down the wrong path."

She didn't listen to management. She learned her job to the point that she made it look easy. "The old timers taught us techniques to make things easier."

Management, according to McVey, created an atmosphere of fear. She said supervisors hovered around the jobs to see if production was being met. McVey worked on a molding line where she was relieved for 45-minute breaks. She'd come back after 15 minutes and stand by the job, worried that a supervisor would see her gone too long.

There was always overtime and management leaned on employees to take it.

"I did all the overtime or we could lose our jobs," she said. "There was always that threat. You can get addicted to overtime. I worked 12 to 16 hours a week OT in 1999."

Things got worse in 2001 when 663 and GM came up with a new contract for a two-tiered wage system. By then most of the 99ers were making the GM wage of nearly $28 an hour. New hires were going to make half that, and there was plenty of tension because the 99ers with seniority had the better jobs.

"The new people had to work harder for less money," said McVey. "It was an us and them game and management loved it. I kept telling (the new workers) that it's not us vs. them. We had nothing to do with that contract."

Management informed the new hires not to listen to the 99ers. Despite her pleas for teamwork, "people left nasty notes at my job," said McVey.

Though she said "the bosses didn't know what they were doing," McVey blames the union as much as management. "The union hurt us more than it helped us. They couldn't communicate or negotiate."

As part of the settlement package, Guide employees with less than 10 years of experience can take a $70,000 buyout. Those over 10 years are offered $140,000.

"The 99ers are getting the worst part of the deal," said McVey. "We had seven years in, knew the job and knew what to expect."

The recent announcement of Guide's closure produced some anxiety for McVey and no doubt many others.

"The skilled-trades people can transfer anywhere they want. (If we transfer) we have to start all over: seniority, pay, 90 days without benefits. And GM is supposed to close 10 plants."

Guide lasted 100 years. Their lights shined on old hand-cranked cars right up to the latest models of Chevrolets, Cadillacs, Buicks and Pontiacs. Those cars will have different lights in the years ahead. Even if they carry the Guide name they won't have been made in the United States, much less Anderson. Guide will be part of history.

Contractors are removing the 82 exhaust stacks sitting atop the former Guide Corp. Plant 9 starting this week.

"We're really doing more curb appeal improvement," Matt Marks, senior vice president at Tower Investments, said. Local contractor M.K. Betts Engineering and Contracting is doing the work on the building, which is located at 1505 W. 29th St.

The Woodland, Calif.-based real estate investment firm Tower Investments bought the building in January. It now has two tenants renting about 30,000 square feet of the 600,000-square-foot building.

"I'm happy the owners are improving it," local property manager and business tenant Mike Roberts said. "And making every attempt to get that property rented."

The sprinkler system is also being renovated by Indianapolis-based Hydro Fire Protection Inc. Work began Wednesday and the project will likely take about two weeks, Marks said. The next project will be to improve the side of the building facing Martin Luther King Boulevard with landscaping, paint and new lighting.

FORECAST 8 WEATHER REPORT

The sunshine was fun while it lasted, because we're getting blasted again with another shot of arctic air today. You'll have to dodge some scattered showers, that may actually mix with some flurries this afternoon as temperatures tumble some 20-degrees down into the mid-40s. A gusty wind will put a bite in the air, and our October chill will continue through the first half of the week.

Legal immigrants feel overlooked

By OSCAR AVILA
McClatchy-Tribune News Service

CHICAGO — Teodora Unlayao was a 34-year-old single woman when she applied in the Philippines for a legal U.S. visa to reunite with her sister in Glenview, Ill. Now the mother of a college student, Unlayao is almost 58.

And she is still waiting. Though she is eligible to immigrate to the U.S., only a limited number of Filipinos are admitted to rejoin their families each year. Demand worldwide is at least triple the supply, and the odds are much worse for Unlayao because she hails from a high-immi-ocritical by touting family reunification as a guiding principle for immigration policy and then making that process interminable for many families.

A legal permanent resident who applies to bring a spouse from China today would wait an estimated seven years. A U.S. citizen must wait 11 years to bring a sibling from India.

Overall, the U.S. government received about 70,000 petitions for family-based visas in June alone. Based on 2005 allotments of visas, at that rate the government would exhaust its annual supply in less than five months.

The U.S. government also sors. But the lottery applies only to citizens of countries with relatively low levels of immigrants, leaving out much of Asia and Latin America.

"People are willing to put up with a lot to have their family close," said Tuyet Le, executive director of the Chicago-based Asian American Institute. "I think we've been able to move this issue pretty far because people see how basic to fairness it is to reform the system."

But there is also momentum on the opposing side, from those who criticize the 1965 Immigration and Nationality Act for unleashing a wave of immigration from and paychecks of working families."

Here's how the hypothetical median-income family — half of four-member families earn less, half earn more — is being squeezed.

The typical family paid, on average from 1999 to 2004, about $865 a year to heat a home with heating oil or $586 with natural gas, according to the National Energy Assistance Directors' Association.

Last winter, however, it cost $1,496 to heat a home with heating oil and $946 with natural gas. Those are increases of 73 percent and 61 percent.

Then there's gasoline. The nationwide average for a gallon of unleaded regular gasoline was $2.22 on Monday, according to AAA. That's 57 percent higher than $1.41, er employee co-pays this year, 56 percent raised premiums and 56 percent increased deductibles for participants, according to a recent survey by The Society of Human Resource Management.

Costs also are soaring for the 26.7 million Americans who pay for their health plans themselves. Cathy McKee is a North Carolina real estate agent. She's married to a freelance television producer. They have two children and no chronic health issues.

In 2001, the family paid $397 a month for health insurance. Today they pay $717 a month. They're hoping to cut that to less than $500 a month by taking a plan with higher deductibles for medical services.

"How do we afford it? Embarrassingly, we are not saving as much as we should and certainly not as much as we used to," McKee said. "I'm prepping my kids for scholarships, because the col-

Child infected with rabies dies

The Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS — A 10-year-old girl who was being treated for the first confirmed case of rabies in Indiana since 1959 has died.

Shannon Carroll of Bourbon in northern Indiana died Thursday morning at Riley Hospital for Children in Indianapolis, said hospital spokeswoman Jo Ann Klooz.

Carroll was hospitalized in early October after being bitten in June by a rabid bat, health officials said. More than 30 relatives, friends and classmates of the girl were offered injections to prevent the spread of the disease.

Some parents whose children attend the girl's school in the town of Bourbon, about 25 miles south of South Bend, worried about possible exposure since rabies can stay dormant for more than a year.

Human to human transmission of rabies is only possible through direct contact with saliva, health officials said.

Teen's death shatters security in small town

By TOM COYNE

ROYAL CENTER — The sign leading into this town of about 800 says "Welcome to the Royal Center of friendliness." There's a school and a church but no stoplight, and many people don't lock their doors at night.

Until Stephanie Wagner's body was found Wednesday night, violence — much less murder — was a virtual stranger here.

"This is like Mayberry," said the Rev. Greig Crowder of Royal Center United Methodist Church. "Things like that don't happen here."

That changed overnight Tuesday, when police say a convicted child murderer who was paroled in March from a Kansas prison killed Wagner, a 16-year-old waitress, and dumped her body in a northwestern Cass County field.

Police said Danny R. Rouse, 51, who was living in Monterey, Ind., with his brother's family, where he served more than 26 years for the 1979 murder of a 5-year-old boy. The Wichita Eagle reported Thursday that Rouse was convicted of cutting Jason Learst's throat at a Wichita, Kan., apartment and of stabbing the boy's mother after she rejected a sexual advance.

Co-owner Heidi Fitousis said she wasn't aware of Rouse's record when he was hired.

"(We) don't normally do a background check, not for a dishwasher," she said Thursday.

Police said Rouse and Wagner left the restaurant Tuesday at about 10:30 p.m. EST. Her mother reported her missing about six hours later.

The Cass County Sheriff's Department issued an Amber Alert Wednesday and took Rouse in for questioning after he arrived for work.

He eventually told deputies that he had been driving along a highway Tuesday night when he began having car trouble and pulled over. When Wagner stopped to help, Rouse told Wallace testified at a probable cause hearing Thursday tha Rouse admitted strangling Wagner and then stabbing her. He body was found less than a mil from where police discovere her abandoned car in Royal Center, about 50 miles southwest c South Bend.

Police have not recovered th knife they believe Rouse use An autopsy was scheduled fc Friday.

In Royal Center, Wagner death was the talk of resident many of whom said their sen of safety had been shaken.

"It shouldn't be happening said Susie Jones, co-owner of M & Pa's Hometown Restaura "We're Small Town USA."

Cass County Sheriff Ge Isaacs said he believed the la murder in that county was 2001.

Some had hoped Wagner shy, quiet girl who had wi drawn from Pioneer High Sch last year and was being ho schooled, had run away, Cr der said.

■ In 1942, daylight-saving "War Time" went into effect in the United States, with clocks turned one hour forward.

■ In 1950, in a speech in Wheeling, W.Va., Sen. Joseph McCarthy, R-Wis., charged the State Department was riddled with Communists.

■ In 1964, The Beatles made their first live American television appearance on "The Ed Sullivan Show" on CBS.

■ In 1971, the crew of Apollo 14 returned to Earth after man's third landing on the moon.

■ In 1984, Soviet leader Yuri V. Andropov died at age 69, less than 15 months after succeeding Leonid Brezhnev; he was succeeded by Konstantin U. Chernenko.

■ In 2001, a U.S. Navy submarine collided with a Japanese fishing boat off the Hawaiian coast, killing nine men and boys aboard the boat.

■ In 1998, the Pentagon said it was sending up to 3,000 U.S. ground troops to the Persian Gulf region to discourage what one official called "any creative thinking" by Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein. At the Nagano Games, German Georg Hackl won the men's luge for the third consecutive Olympics.

■ In 2003, President Bush told congressional Republicans at a policy conference that Iraq had fooled the world for more than a decade about its banned weapons and the United Nations was now facing "a moment of truth" in disarming Saddam Hussein. The leaders of Germany and Russia renewed their calls for a peaceful resolution in Iraq, restating their opposition to any U.S.-led war to disarm and oust Hussein. The U.S. Navy ended its last bombing exercises on Puerto Rico's Vieques Island. The West beat the East 155-145 in the first double overtime game in NBA All-Star history.

You se,he didn't feel quite sure
How things was goin'to come out,
For she had a sort of mysterious way,-
That gave him the slightest doubt.

Ah,- but it was a sorrowful night,
When he found out that,she-
Really cared for another guy;
Just a little bit more than,he.

So he turned her out,of his big heart's dungeon,
Where he had always kept her locked;
And started life anew again,
But his path,to success,seemed blocked.

It was then he turned,to church and Christ,
And to his unexpected surprise,-
He met another dear friend there;
And again did his sad heart rise.

She seemed kind a strange,to him at first,
For she was a christian girl;
And she had a heart,that was clean and pure,
As that of the ocean pearl.

And every-thing now, seems bright and new,
To her,- he is in debt;
But he still recalls,his former friend-
And the unlucky day they met.

And now a lesson she has learned,
And lots of thinkin' she has done;
But, why should she but in again,
And take him away from the other one.

The other one,he loves the best,
Because she's really true;
And I don't think he's far behind-
In choosing her, do you ?

And now in conclusion, I might add,
A poet,I don't claim to be;
But I really do jist wonder,-
What you'd do if you were me.

- Orlando B.Beck.

Daniel Goldsberry, of Perkinsville, Dies Suddenly This Morning.

Daniel Goldsberry, a pioneer and well known citizen, died at his home near Perkinsville at 3 o'clock this morning. Death came suddenly. The deceased was near 70 years of age, had lived nearly all his life in Madison county and was one of the best known citizens.

AGED MAN DEAD.

5-28-97

James Trimble, of Chesterfield, Passed Away Yesterday Afternoon.

James Trimble an old and highly respected citizen died at his home in Chesterfield at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The funeral will occur at 11 o'clock tomorrow forenoon and will be under the auspices of the Masonic fraternity. Burial will be in the Chesterfield cemetery.

The deceased was past seventy-six years of age and had lived twenty years in Chesterfield. He was well known because of his commanding appearance and genial good qualities. He had been a member of the Masonic lodge at Muncie since quite a young man.

Mrs. Trimble, the aged widow of the deceased is dangerously ill.

David F. Alger, of this city, went to Muncie this morning and shortly after his arrival cut his throat with a razor and will die.

Alger is about 21 years old and has been working at the nail mill. He lived at the home of his cousin, Mrs. Eli Abbott, at 108 West Seventh street. Alger's father is dead and his mother lives a short distance out of Middletown, says Mrs. Abbott. When a Bulletin reporter called at the Abbott home the family was much excited over a telegram just received saying: "Come. Doug Alger has cut his throat." The telegram came from Orange Kennedy, whose wife, a sister to Alger, is dying of consumption at Muncie.

THE CAUSE.

Mrs. Abbott and her daughter said they could assign no reason for Doug's act unless it was because his youngest sister was considerred wild and roving and when last heard from was in Fort Wayne. Then the fatal illness of Mrs. Kennedy preyed upon his mind. He prepared to go to Muncie last night, but missed the train and went at 5 o'clock this morning, being the first one up at Abbott's. They say there was no razor about their house. As he left Mrs. Abbott said his last words were, "Good bye, Annie," speaking so he could be heard in another room. She says the young man was of quiet disposition, temperate and industrious. Mrs. Abbott did not know of him having any embarrassments at hand. Miss Abbott talked about the same as her mother. The women said Mr. Abbott knew on more about the case than they did. The Abbott family missed the noon train and will go to Muncie this evening.

ANOTHER ACCOUNT.

The Muncie Times telegraphed the Bulletin as follows:

"David Alger, employee of Anderson nail mill, cut his throat with a razor at the home of Orange Cannady. Despondent on account of a wayward sister. He will die."

William Wall was born in 1758 in Virginia and served in Taylor's Virginia Regiment. William's military service is documented in the DAR Index of Patriots. William's wife was Nancy Elkins and their two known children were John and Martha Ellen. John Wall would later own real estate in the Pendleton area, and a stone pillar marks the family plot at Old Falls Cemetery. Both Philip Hobaugh and William Wall are thought to be buried in or near their respective family's plot in the oldest section of Grovelawn pictured above.

EARLY SETTLERS
PERKINSVILLE AREA

Twenty years before the town was laid out the area surrounding Perkinsville was the home of the red men and the wild animals. It was like a continent of forest where nature ran riot in all her wild ways. When the pioneers came in the early 1820's, few white men had been here before them. They came with great hopes and a courage that braved everything. They foresaw the possibilities of a rich country, believed in the institutions which their forefathers had founded and endured the trials and privations of that day. It is given to but a few to have a part in such a great change. Today we give them honor and speak their name, for they, like the red men before them, are all sleeping, many on the hillside of White River, near Perkinsville.

Among the family names of those who came in the early days, some before and some after Perkinsville was founded, are these that follow:

the planter, and cultivator and the wagons.

Along in the 30s the mechanical corn picker was replacing the shucking peg and it wasn't long until the combine replaced the grain binder and the threshing machine. These wonderful new machines allowed one man to do the work that formerly took many, and the small farmer was finding it hard to compete. The automobile industry was getting a good start by this time and some began leaving the farm to find work in the city, thus it was no longer easy to find needed extra hands to help out on the farm.

Farming, once considered a way of life, now became a business. Large amounts of capital and land were needed where once all that one needed was a team of horses, a few simple tools, a strong back and a desire to work. The farms that were considered large in the 1920s and before, when horses were the only source of power, are now considered small when compared to the 2000 to 3000 acre operations today. The Likens, Neese and House families, all large farmers, are considered some of the best, most efficient, prosperous farmers in the area. Robert Likens, after the death of his father in 1940, farmed 170 acres and did it all with horses. From this modest beginning his farm operation grew until now he and his sons, George and Herbert, are perhaps the largest farmers in Madison County with over 4000 acres of owned and rented land under cultivation.

At the same time that farm size was on the increase, business in Perkinsville was on the decline. The automobile made it possible to travel to the larger towns and back in a fraction of the time it took in the horse and buggy days and they carried a better selection of items to choose from, so the small merchants of Perkinsville were being squeezed out. Some continued to operate for a while, Egelus' store was run for a while by Laurel Foland, then later by John and Pauline Blessinger. Goldsberry's was operated a short time by Carl and Margaret Hutson and later by Walter Morrison. Hatton's store was sold to (?) Ebert, then to Bill and Joan Walker who did a good grocery business in Perkinsville for several years, then they sold to John and Georgia Nance and they, in turn to Walter Morrison. Later this building was used as a headquarters for the Ku Klux Klan until it burned.

Foland's store was operated for a while by Perry and Nellie Shell, then later as a Pool Room by Ed Hackleman and Lloyd Brehm. Rollie Girton had a tavern in the old Drug Store building and Charlie Weir had one across from Foland's store, but his license was for carry out only, so if you wanted a beer, he handed it to you out the door and you drank it on the outside. Later Charles Bonge took over this tavern and Bonge's became known far and wide by the means of bumper stickers, T-shirts, word-of-mouth and even through the airwaves. Radio station WIRE (Indianapolis) would run a commercial announcing, we serve pickled pig's feet, sardines and golden ashtrays. (The ashtrays were actually sardine cans with the lables removed).

Only two businesses remain in Perkinsville today, Leroy Lamb's Body Shop and Bonge's Tavern.

What was once the business district has now declined to the point where most people would never suspect that this was once a beautiful small town bustling with activity and one of the best business points in the county.

The general store was owned back then by Frank M. Foland, before that it had been in the hands of Obed House, Rueben Neese, and Zenas Beckwith. Lloyd Anderson was a clerk in the store for years.

Venus Goldsberry had a grocery store, a community building, croquet and horseshoe courts, and playground. Fred W. Egelus had a general store. Mr. and Mrs James Hatton owned and operated the Perkinsville barbecue. James Bauner had a blacksmith shop and Rollie Girton a garage. Fred Applegate was an automobile mechanic and operated a garage. Mrs. Ethel Lennis had a 3,000 egg capacity custom hatchery. A pool room and barber shop belonged to Perry Shell. Charles Lennis had a cider mill and also ground feed.

On Saturday night the farm families came to Perkinsville to do their trading. The ladies brought their eggs and traded them for items that couldn't be raised on the farm or in their gardens, then they would sit and visit with one another while the men played croquet or horseshoe down at Goldsberry's croquet court which was perhaps the best kept court anywhere. Usually there was square dancing in the community building and the kids ran all over town having fun and getting into all kinds of mischief until their parents could round them up when it was time to go home.

Ice cream cones and soda pop were a nickel and Nehi was the biggest and best soft drink a kid ever tasted. You could also get a sack of candy for a nickel. Back then, Perkinsville was the fun place to be on Saturday night. This was in the 1920's.

Farming has always been and probably will remain to be the largest industry in this vicinity. Roy Gentry was one of the largest landowners and was a very up-to-date farmer, having all implements for progressive farming. Gentry had 500 acres of land and also rented the land of the late Ellis Carey, 340 acres. He was also an active stock farmer. He raised wheat and corn and Mrs. Gentry raised fine buff rock chickens. There were four sons, Verlyn, Ernest, Homer, Carl, and one daughter, Helen.

Other large land owners were Dr. William M. Garretson who owned 500 acres and David F. House, about 800 acres.

To farm acreage of these amounts was a tremendous undertaking when it was all done with horses. It meant endless hours of hard labor in the fields and chores in the early hours of the mornings and late in the evenings. The old saying, "Man works from sun to sun, but womens work is never done" certainly was true, but somehow the work got done and the farmers would not have wanted to be doing anything else. There is something about working on the land, to those raised on the farm, that is more satisfying than any other occupation.

LATER YEARS

Farming, still the largest industry in this area, has changed considerably since the 1920s when the farm tractor begin to appear on the scene. At first the tractor did only the hardest part of the work such plowing and discing the ground, and the teams of horses still pulled

The mill passed into the hands of Alfred Clark, and was some time in the eighties destroyed by fire and never rebuilt.

Thomas L. Beckwith was prominent in politics, having served as a member of the board of county commissioners and was the nominee of the republican party in 1874 for county treasurer, but owing to a large adverse majority was defeated.

Perkinsville at one time boasted of having one of the best silver cornet bands in this section of the country, which was often called to play at Anderson, Noblesville and other places.

Daniel Goldsberry, Jacob Zelber, William Adair and Dr. J. M. Garretson were also active in politics in their day. While neither of these gentlemen ever held office, they were alert to the interests of their friends.

Dr. John S. Hougham who once served as township trustee of Jackson township, moved over into the edge of Hamilton county and was elected to the legislature for one term.

While there is not the hustle and stir about the streets and business places that once was witnessed in Perkinsville, it is by no means passed the place where the evidence of life is extinct.

PRESENT BUSINESS

Frank Foland operates a general store there in which is found a large and well assorted stock of all kinds of merchandise demanded by the trade of that locality.

Doc. Applegate is proprietor of a well equipped drug store, the Eggless department store, Fred Applegate's Garage and repair shop. Perry Shell's cigar and tobacco store and Barner the blacksmith are all busy places and enjoy the patronage of the country around the village.

It has a large and commodious school building, which is a credit to the place and the authorities who caused it to be erected.

It has churches in which the people have ample places for worship, and the citizens are law abiding, loyal and true.

Much more could be said of this place, but enough has been written to demonstrate that the Daily Bulletin regards the town and its worthy inhabitants as its friends.

Dr. William M. Garretson is the oldest practicing physician in that part of the county at this time. He has from his earliest experience enjoyed a lucrative business, and has laid by a handsome fortune.

PERKINSVILLE PONDERS PAST

Perkinsville Is Given Name Of Pioneer Pottery Maker

1950

JAMES ATHIA PERKINS

HARRIETT WEBB PERKINS

Two names are closely connected with the early history of western Jackson township, that of William Perkins who built the first grist mill and the other, James Perkins, who established a large pottery plant. Both industries were built along the north banks of White river on the site of the present town of Perkinsville, named for the maker of crocks and jugs.

It is known that the Perkins family of nine located on the north bank of the river where the town now stands in 1825. Just when Mr. Perkins arrived is uncertain, but it is known that he married Harriett Webb in William Webb's log cabin. A circuit rider performed the ceremony for the pioneer youth and his barefoot bride with head covered by a sun bonnet.

The Perkins family moved into what now is known as the Truitt home in Perkinsville prior to 1840. They are buried in the cemetery south of White river from the town. Older residents yet remember Mr. Perkins as the "man with the long white beard." Mrs. Mary Webb Gunn, now 85, is a younger cousin of Mrs. Perkins. The pictures above were made from photographs owned by Mrs. Isaac Goldsberry.

SCOTCH FARMERS AROUSED

Farmers of Scotland are roused over serious conditions of agriculture, and mass meetings are being held in many parts of the country. Ten thousand farm demonstrations recently at Perth and passed a resolution demanding that the government immediately convene a joint conference of all parties to evolve plans to stabilize agriculture. More than 200 agriculturalists from all parts of the borders held a mass meeting at Kelso and passed a resolution similar to that ratified at Perth. Each Fife, Wigtown and Central Banffshire have added their voices to the national protest, and demonstrations have been held at Cupar, Stranraer and Keith, and other places.

AGED RESIDENTS OF PERKINSVILLE

Several of Large Families— Twins Are 72

Mrs. Mary Elizabeth "Aunt Moll" Foland, age 82, is the oldest Perkinsville resident having been born and reared there. She was the daughter of Mahala Elliott and Daniel Goldsberry and was born in a log cabin January 17,1848, a member of a family of six children. She was married to Nelson Foland, son of Elizabeth Youngblood and George Foland, Feb. 13, 1867. To this union were born four sons, Charles, Dan, Frank, and Hal all of whom are living. Mr. Foland, a Civil war veteran died July 25, 1907, at the age of 62 years. He was a member of the Masonic fraternity and G. A. R. Mr. Foland has seen three wars and never wishes to see another.

When she was a girl they went "visiting" in a big farm wagon and when buggies made their appearance they thought they were simply "swell."

Mrs. Gunn Elderly Resident

Mrs. Mary Webb Gunn, aged 85, has lived in this community almost all her life. She came from Ohio in May, 1845, at the age of ten months She was a member of a family of ten children of Jane Thompson and Elisha Webb. She is the only member of the family surviving. She was married to Henry Newill Gunn, son of Jemima Root and Timothy Tyler Gunn, while he was home on a thirty day furlough from the civil war, April 22, 1863. To this union were born seven children, Amanda, William, Rosa, Della, Charles and twins, Maude and Kate. Amanda, aged 64, lives with her mother. There is a coincidence in the fact that Mr. Gunn was just four years older to the day than his wife. Mrs. Gunn has a remarkable memory for one of her years. During the past few years her eyesight has failed and she has become inactive. She tells that the first Sunday School she attended was in a log schoolhouse south of the A. P. Rinker home, "Old Daddy" Lewark was teacher.

Twins Age 72

Harriett Holland Elizabeth Truitt Capper and Aaron Holloway Marion Truitt are twins residing here. They were members of a family of ten children of Elizabeth Webb and John William R. Truitt who came from New Holland to Lafayette, Ind. They observed their seventy-second birthdays June 13, 1929. Mrs. Aaron Truitt died years ago. Benjamin Capper, Civil War veteran, died Sept. 7, 1914 aged 71 years. Mrs. Capper reared Maud Perkins Lennis and Maud Miller Curtis. When Harriett and Aaron were children they went to a subscription school and as funds were scarce they took turns of learning the three r's, going to school week about. Since the death of a brother, James Truitt, Aaron has made his home with his sister in a house which is seventy-five years old.

Other Elderly Residents

William Wise, a former band leader, enjoys good health at his home east of town, and is very active. He is 83 years old and helps with the farm chores and has always kept bees.

Other elderly Perkinsville residents are: Emma Anderson, 78 and Isaac Goldsberry, 77; Charles M. Branch, 75; Martha Whitehead, 74; William Lennis, 74; Oliver Goldsberry, 74; Nellie Goldsberry, 74; Mary Neese, 72; and Ellen Harless, 70. Mr. and Mrs. William Lennis, the parents of nine living children, celebrated their golden wedding date in 1929; Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Branch who have nine children will celebrate their fifty-second wedding anniversary, July 4, 1930. Mrs. Marietta Turner has been a nurse for years.

The brick house owned by Mr. Cappock was built by Allen Cole and is one hundred years old. The Truitt house is close to ninety years old. The Branch home is eighty years old and the Albright house was built sixty-five years ag.o

OLIVER GOLDSBERRY AND VENUS GOLDSBERRY

Venus Goldsberry operated a grocery store in Perkinsville during the 1920s and 30s. The building in which his store was located had once been a saloon and at that time it stood at the corner of Center St. and Madison. Sometime after 1919 it was moved to the corner of Water and Walnut streets and living quarters were added on it's west side. This was where Venus and his wife Florence lived and where Frank, their son, grew up. Together they operated the store and prospered.

In addition to the store, Venus built a community building which was used mostly as a dance hall. Square and round dancing every Saturday night drew large crowds, not only of dancers, but during the summer many stood outside, watching through the windows and listening to the music. The three Fesler brothers, from Frankton, played the fiddle, banjo and guitar and sometimes "Ol" Goldsberry fiddled his favorite, "Listen to the mocking bird." Frank Shively, Russell Hudson and Pete Yancy called the square dances to the rhythm of the music while everyone, including the old folks and the kids enjoyed dancing to their favorite tunes. It was a big thrill for the little girls when John Foland, perhaps the oldest man there, ask them to dance.

Peanut Gang in Perkinsville Terrorized County For Years

Lawless Gang, Who Wore Peanut Pinned to Lapel of Coat; Broken Up When One Leader Was Sent To Prison And Another Killed
(W.H. Blodgett, writer for The Indianapolis News).

July 18, 1922

Noblesville, IND. Just across the Hamilton County line and on the edge of Madison County, lies the demure little village of Perkinsville, and this quiet demure little town surrounded by some of the most fertile land in the state, and in the midst of a panorama picturesque scenery, was once, strange as it seems, the headquarters of the Peanut Gang. This was an organization of hard-drinking, fast-riding, daring and devilish, young men, who laughed at the law, defied its officers and finally came to an end when one of its leaders was sent to the penitentiary and another stopped by a bullet.

The Peanut Gang flourished along in 1880 and 1881 and it gained its name from the fact that its members wore on the lapel of their coats, or fastened to their shirts, a peanut . . . why a peanut the chronicle of those times has never been explained. But it was a badge of terrorism for millen around, and the sight of a Peanutter in any locality was advance information that trouble was to come very soon. The Peanutters did not wear robes and masks; they did not disguise themselves in any way; on the contrary they seemed to delight in the boldness of their acts. Nor did they issue any warnings of what they intended to do, they just did it and defied the law to punish them for it.

So far as can be learned, the Peanut Gang was never guilty of any high crimes; at least they were never arrested for any; although there was a strong suspicion that some of the gang held up the old Perkinsville stagecoach back in 1880 and took two mail sacks, the government could not find evidence sufficient to arrest the suspected parties. There is no question but some of them were chicken thieves and there is not much doubt that a number of mysterious assaults with no attempts at robbery could be justly charged to the gang. Its specialty was breaking up religious meetings, disturbing school gatherings, invading social events and it was a delight to attend uninvited, singing and spelling bees at the country school houses and as their appearance was always the signal for a disturbance such social affairs finally had to be abandoned.

Several times members of the gang were arrested but they always came clear and reprisals followed those who made complaint against them. Their horses tails were docked, their cattle mutilated, fences torn down, and their buildings stoned and egged. Every one became afraid of the Peanut Gang and it was so dangerous to interfere with them that for a long time they went their own way without molestation. Two constables from Anderson came here with warrants for the arrest of some of the Peanutters. The gang assembled, seized the officers, stripped them of their badges and weapons, and after tearing up the warrants booted the two constables down the pike for more than a mile. An effort was made to procure grand jury indictments for this offense "against the peace and dignity of the state of Indiana," but the two constables could not identify any of these who had kicked them or torn up their warrants and no one in Perkinsville was brave enough to go to Anderson and tell the grand jury who the assailants of the Anderson officers. In order to become a Peanutter in good standing the applicants for such honors had to prove himself a fighting man of ability and the one who was the handiest with his fists in a rough and tumble fight was the leader. For a long time the chief of the Peanut Gang was a young man who came to the neighborhood in a mysterious way and of whose antecedents but little was known. He fought his way to leadership.

Leader Sent To Prison

A church social was given at the house of John Roller, in Perkinsville, on the night of July 9, 1881 and this young man, with this gang of Peanutters, attempted to drive the guests away. A stone thrown through a window struck William Hougham on the head, inflicting a wound from which he died a few days later. The leader of the gang was arrested by deputy sheriffs from Anderson and charged with murder, but not before the deputies had to fire a volley at the Peanutters who were bent on preventing the arrest of their leader. The jury convicted him of assault and battery with intent to murder, and he served seven years in the State Prison at Michigan City. After his release from prison he went west and died a few years ago in California.

Another Leader Is Killed

After the arrest of this leader the leadership of the Peanut Gang was assumed by a young man, Lewis Hayes, the son of respectable parents, who lived in Perkinsville. His leadership lasted little more than a year. A celebration of some kind was going on in Perkinsville on July 21, 1882, and the gang was there, and all were more or less, mostly more, under the influence of liquor, and had severely beaten several persons without provocation. The feeling against the gang began to show itself and there were threats of organizing a vigilance committee and driving the Peanutters out of town. A young woman known as the queen of the Peanutters, who was the sweetheart of the gang leader, heard of these threats, and to save her lover, induced him to start home with her. As he and the young woman went by a young man named Clint Wilson, the latter jostled the leader, who instantly drew his revolver. But Wilson beat him to the draw and shot the Peanut Gang leader through the heart. He fell dead in his tracks and never showed any signs of life after the ball entered his body. He fell across the boundary line between the two counties, his feet in Hamilton County and the rest of his body in Madison County. It was decided that the affair took place in Madison County. Later Wilson was indicted for manslaughter, but was acquitted on the ground of self-defense. He was defended by the late Colonel M. S. Robinson.

This account differs from the actual facts somewhat. The gang leader that was sent to prison was James Dallas Cook. He did not die in California but lived in Claypool, Indiana in his later years.

EARLY SETTLERS:

Among the first of the early settlers, after William CONNER, perhaps the very first, were the family of George SHIRTS, consisting of himself, his wife and three children, who were said to have come to the area in 1818, probably in the fall after the treaty, and settled on what later became known as the "old William Conner prairie farm".

Soon after, Solomon FINCH and Sarah, his wife, who with five children, crossed White River at the mouth of Stoney Creek, on the 19th of April, 1819. With his family came also Israel FINCH, Aaron FINCH, Amasa CHAPMAN, James WILLISON, and William, John and Jared BUSH. The following September, 1819, John FINCH, father of Hiram G. FINCH, also came to settle. Hiram settled on "Horseshoe prairie", two miles south of Noblesville. Hiram FINCH is said to have chopped the logs for the construction of the second cabin in Noblesville, it being built for Dr. John FINCH, in 1824, near the "elm trees," on the bank of White River, just above the Medical Spring.

It was reported that of the original pioneers of 1818 and 1819, only 2 were still living in 1880. They were Sidney SHIRTS, who later became a resident of Iowa, and James G. FINCH, one of the five children of Solomon and Sarah FINCH.

About the spring of 1820, Charles LACEY, of Fayette County, Indiana, selected a homestead, and, after "cutting of a patch of ground", he planted corn. Having done this much, he returned to his former home, and came back with his family. His early homestead continued to be owned and occupied by him until the time of his death.

About the year 1821, John D. STEPHENSON came for permanent settlement.

Jonathan COLBURN, with his wife and one child, landed here on the 11th of March, 1823, and they became permanent settlers. Mr. COLBURN was still alive and enjoying substantial health in 1880.

On the 14th of February, 1824, Samuel WALLS, father of Barton WALLS, settled on what became known as the "Conrad farm".

Delicious Oven-Baked French Fries

Baking instead of frying these potatoes reduces the fat while keeping them crispy.

Prep time: 10 minutes. Cook time: 35 minutes. Makes 5 servings. Serving size: 1 cup.

Ingredients

4 large potatoes (2 lbs.) (regular or sweet potatoes)
8 C ice water
1 tsp garlic powder
1 tsp onion powder
¼ tsp salt
1 tsp white pepper
¼ tsp allspice
1 tsp hot pepper flakes
1 Tbsp vegetable oil

Directions

Scrub potatoes and cut them into long ½-inch strips. Place the strips in the ice water, cover and chill for 1 hour or longer.

Remove potato strips and dry them thoroughly. Preheat oven to 475°F.

Place garlic powder, onion powder, salt, white pepper, allspice and pepper flakes in a plastic bag. Toss the potato strips in the spice mixture.

Put the potato strips in a shallow baking pan and brush them with oil.

Cover the baking pan with aluminum foil and bake at 475°F for 15 minutes.

Remove the foil and continue baking, uncovered, for an additional 15 to 20 minutes or until golden brown. Turn fries occasionally to brown on all sides.

Dear Madison County Homemakers,

Hello, Extension Homemaker friends! COVID is still bringing its challenges to our plans. As I write this article, our state currently shows every county but 10 as being in the red. I've heard some of you have been meeting again, but have decided once again to put your meetings on hold until this recent surge is over, which I support. With this being said, the Executive Board discussed and decided that we will make a decision whether or not to have International Day and the Quilt Seminar one month (30 days) prior to the event. If we are in the RED or ORANGE, the events will be canceled. This is disappointing, but our safety and well being is most important.

Fun Days scheduled are scheduled for the 1st and 3rd Thursdays of January and February at the Madison County Farm Bureau 4-H building, if we are in the RED or if schools are closed due to inclement weather, Fun Days will be canceled.

The February Council Meeting has been canceled, as well. If you are on a committee that was scheduled to meet, please contact the committee chairperson to move forward with your plans. Packets will be mailed to the club presidents. In the packets you will find information about the Spring District Meeting to be held via Zoom on March 24th. We will provide information as soon as we receive it.

We are planning a new event called Cookies, Candy & Pies! Oh, my! to be held on Friday, November 4, 2022 from 1:00-5:00 p.m.. Delilah Swinford will be the committee chairperson and is looking for people to be on the planning committee. Please give her a call if you can help out 765-610-7568.

We are also looking ahead to brighter days and fun activities at the fair! Included in the February packet will be our volunteer sheet for the fair. It's early, but we can look at our calendars and start planning to help at the plant sale, pre-judging and building watch. This is a good time to start working on projects we want to exhibit, too.

Home and Family Conference is June 6-8th! It is being held at Embassy Suites at exit 212 in Noblesville. Registration for the conference will begin April 1st. First Timer Award Applications are due to the Extension Office by February 15th. You can also apply for the "I Want To Go Again" scholarship which is sponsored by the past state presidents, at: https://ieha-families.org/events/i-want-to-go-again-award/.

Thank you so much for all your support. We can get through this together. Together is what we do best.

Anderson Colts rally brings out hundreds

Former Colts defensive end Bernard Whittington signs an autograph for Mike Sargent of Alexandria during the Colts' rally.

ANDERSON — Anna Jones of Anderson was among the first people to get autographs from Colts cheerleaders and former players on Thursday, and she was quick with a prediction about Indianapolis' first-round AFC playoff game on Saturday against the New York Jets.

"Colts by 10 points," said the resident of Edgewater Woods nursing home, who said she never misses watching the games. In a season where some fans have lower expectations because the team had to scrap and win its last four games to make the playoffs, Jones said she's enjoyed the ride. "I like that they had to struggle to get in," she said.

Jones was among hundreds of fans who turned out for a Colts Playoff Blue Thursday rally at Mounds Mall. "Geez, this is a long line," Jim Hudson of Anderson said as he stood at the end of a snaking queue of about 250 people who waited for autographed Colts playoff posters and a chance to win tickets to Saturday's game.

The AFC South Division champions are making an NFL-record-tying ninth straight playoff appearance, and in the December 18, 1932 - April 14, 2020

INGALLS — Frank A. Hudson Jr., 87, of Ingalls, enered into everlasting peace with the Lord on Tuesday, April 14, 2020, at Westminster Village North.

He was born in Indianapolis on Dec. 18, 1932, to Frank Sr. and Frances (Westfall) Hudson. He graduated from Lapel High School in 1952 before enlisting in the U.S. Navy. He proudly served in the U.S. Navy from 1952-1956 as an aviation electrician. He was awarded the National Defense Medal for serving during the Korean War.

Frank married his wife of 59 years, Carolyn (Bland), on July 12, 1961.

AND FINALLY

AN UNPAID BANK NOTE AND AN UNSETTLED estate left the c.1840 house built by the founder of Wolcottville deteriorating in legal limbo.

At the library in the northern Indiana town to do genealogy research, Michigan resident Tim Hudson—George Wolcott's great-great-great grandson—struck up a conversation about the house with local history buff Rex Fisher. The chance meeting and a strategy provided by Indiana Landmarks led the men to launch a campaign to pay off the bank note and save the house.

They enlisted the LaGrange County Community Foundation, which bought the Greek Revival house and donated it to Indiana Landmarks the same day. We moved quickly to get a new roof on the place and make other repairs while we hunt a buyer who'll finish the work. "I knew to save the house we had to get it to Indiana Landmarks," says Hudson.

Tim Hudson helped raise the money to save his ancestor's home, which was then given to Indiana Landmarks. Our preservation covenant will protect the house. Visit the for sale tab of our website to check out the listing.

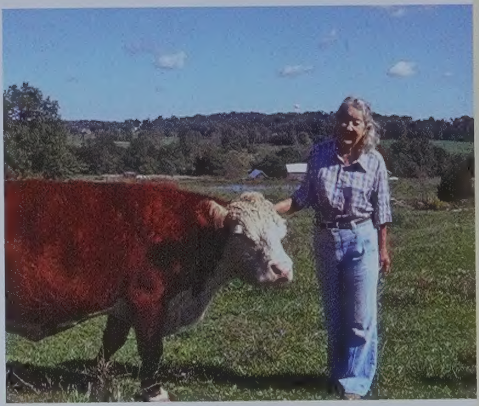
One Woman's Legacy



LAST YEAR, LONG-TIME Indiana Landmarks member Zelpha Mitsch passed away. Zelpha was a valued member of our Heritage Society, a group of people who have made provisions to support Indiana Landmarks' mission through estate planning. Her bequest of hundreds of acres of farmland in Floyd and Harrison counties promises to be among the largest gifts this organization has received.

Zelpha joined Indiana Landmarks in 1997 and dutifully maintained her membership in the years that followed. Her extremely modest lifestyle belied a woman of great intelligence and vision. Following the deaths of her husband and son, Zelpha entrusted Indiana Landmarks with the preservation of her farmstead, which we will fulfill through a protective covenant. Her gift of property, when sold, will add significantly to Indiana Landmarks' long-term financial strength and ability to carry out our mission.

While Zelpha's bequest was dramatic, Indiana Landmarks embraces planned gifts of all sizes and many forms. We take it as a great honor to be named as a beneficiary and to know that our friends and members recognize the value our work holds for future generations. If you would like to leave a legacy that supports preservation of our heritage, I hope you'll consider becoming a member of our Heritage Society by including Indiana Landmarks in your estate planning. We would be honored.

Marsh Davis, President

If you are interested in discussing a planned gift to Indiana Landmarks, please contact Marsh Davis or Sharon Gamble at 317-639-4534.

Stephen T. Jackson | For The Herald Bulletin

The William Dilts house is located on the south side of Indiana 32 at the eastern edge of Chesterfield.

The differing accounts of Union Township's origin

STEPHEN T. JACKSON
MADISON COUNTY HISTORIAN

Union is the smallest township in Madison County, covering just 19 1/2 square miles. But when it was first organized as the county's sixth township on May 3, 1830, it was much larger. As originally carved out from Anderson Township by order of the board of county commissioners, it encompassed 63 square miles. Its northern part was eventually absorbed with the organization of Richland (1834), Monroe (1836) and Van Buren (1837) townships, reducing it to its present size.

The commissioners designated the name of Union without leaving any explanation for the choice. Over time some believed it was given that name on account of its being located opposite the point where the counties of Henry, Delaware and Madison form a "union."

The more widely accepted reason is that the name was selected in recognition of the Federal Union of States. That explanation is more reasonable owning to the fact that, by 1830, the United States of America had successfully withstood two attempts by England (1775-1783 and 1812-1815) to defeat it and was no longer threatened. In other words, the union forged by two wars was now secure.

William Dilts is believed to be the first settler. He arrived from Montgomery County, Ohio, in March 1821, and settled on the east bank of Mill Creek in what is now Chesterfield. He remained at this site for about four years but, not having sufficient financial means to enter the land, it was claimed from under him by Joshua Baxter in 1824. Mr. Dilts then moved to Delaware County, where he remained for four years.

In 1829, he returned and entered 160 acres of land in the same section he previously occupied, only on the south side of the road that is now Indiana 32. He erected a double-pen log house in which he established the first hotel in the township. About 1833, he built a large brick house, the first in the township.

It was at the site of William Dilts' first log cabin that Frederick Bronnenberg, Sr. stopped with his family in June 1821. He was on the way to the prairie country in Illinois when one of his oxen gave out. While seeking assistance from Mr. Dilts, Bronnenberg was told there were no roads to speak of farther west; thus, he decided to locate in the area. He moved his family into an abandoned cabin that had previously been occupied by an Indian trader named McChester. In the spring of 1822, he built a cabin of his own north of White River. Nearby he erected a sawmill. Burrs for grinding both corn and wheat were added later. The family eventually became large land holders in the county, particularly in Union Township.

A major influence in the development of Chesterfield was the arrival of Amasa Makepeace. He and his wife, Betsey, were married about 1800 in Norton, Massachusetts. The couple moved to Chesterfield, New Hampshire, where they remained until 1818 when they and their children moved west, eventually arriving here in 1823.

In 1825, Makepeace built the first grist mill on Mill Creek, affording the settlers in the east central part of the county a place to take their grain to have it ground.

The couple's son, Allen, is credited with laying out the town in 1830. Known first as West Union, it was renamed Chesterfield in 1834. Because Allen was given the responsibility of laying out the town, it seems natural that his influence caused the town to be named Chesterfield, naming it after his birthplace in New Hampshire in 1802. It was a pioneer custom practiced all across our nation.

When the Indianapolis & Bellefontaine Railroad was completed through Madison County in 1852, Chesterfield experienced several years of unusual business activity. Population increased to such an extent that in the late summer of 1857, a petition was circulated and signed by a large majority of the citizens, asking for incorporation as a town. An election was held January 2, 1858, with thirty-two votes cast in favor and none against. On March 11, 1858, the county commissioners ordered the incorporation.

Mill Creek was the name given to the post office at Chesterfield. It opened on March 15, 1827, and continued to be known by that name until it was changed to Chesterfield February 9, 1848. Amasa and son George Makepeace were the only postmasters during its 21 years of operation. The name must have had some lasting recognition as it appears on 1864 and 1870 county maps.

Sly Fork Station was a stop on the old Pan Handle Railroad almost three miles directly south of Chesterfield, about midway between Anderson and Middletown. When the railroad was completed in the mid-1850s, Sly Fork was established to serve the town of Chesterfield, which by that time was a going concern. There was a platform beside the tracks but, as far as is known, there was never a station or a spur track. A warehouse was maintained at the site by James Ross. This building burned in 1871.

Freight bound for Chesterfield was unloaded from Pan Handle cars on the Sly Fork platform and hauled the rest of the way to the destination by ox cart. There was a general store in the settlement operated by Beningall and Tucker, then later by Burr and Windell. It was during the later occupancy that it burned.

There was a post office at Sly Fork named Branson's that operated from January 20, 1862 until May 31, 1866.

By 1874, nothing to indicate a town — except a few empty houses — remained. A short distance northeast, Sly Fork and Mill Creek take their rise. The former flows south into Fall Creek, the latter north into White River near Chesterfield.

Bubbling Springs was the name given to an area on the east side of County Road 500 East and the north side of Indiana 32 intersection. At one time it was an interurban stop and gas station. An artesian well was located there, providing the name.

The distinction of being the oldest name-place in Union Township goes to a Delaware Indian village located on a bluff overlooking White River about one mile northwest of Chesterfield. Established around 1815, it was called Killbuck's Town, or simply Buck's Town, by the early settlers after the village chief Captain Killbuck known also by his Christian name, Charles Henry Killbuck.

Next in the series is Pipe Creek Township, where the names of Mudsock and Buzzardsville will be examined.

This year you have an insatiable curiosity about life and certain individuals. As you get to know and understand a set of key people in your life, you might choose to reveal more of yourself. If you are single, make sure that you get to know each potential suitor well before deciding whom to date. You could meet someone of significance this year. If you are attached, you and your sweetie will experience the vicissitudes of life together. The two of you will live your life with intensity. LIBRA sees you as romantic.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) A loved one could be challenging. You might be more irritated by this person's behavior than you realize. For the sake of peace, you could be swallowing your anger. The source of your irritation dates back several months.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Pace yourself, knowing full well that you need a break from your demanding schedule that is likely to continue for a while. A partner might change his or her tone, which could be a relief. Respond to a demanding friend who wants your attention.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Tension builds around you. A loved one could be cranky and difficult to deal with. A boss might interfere with your Sunday routine. A partner becomes challenging over money. You will need to have a discussion about this, like it or not.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You instinctively know that you need to stay close to home in order to follow through on some of your to-do list for the holidays. Whether it's decorating the house, writing cards or wrapping presents, you feel happiest in your own environment.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You can make waves and bypass cantankerous people with ease. What you discover is that you need to honor certain priorities involving your home and/or family. Your day will not flow until you do just that. Later on, let the fun begin.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your creativity mounts, and you reach a new level of effectiveness. You could be reorganizing and rethinking your holiday gift list. The more you funnel your creativity into your choices, the more your thoughtfulness will be appreciated.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) You wake up energized and ready to accommodate most people, and you're also ready to have a good time. Someone close to you wants more time with you; make it your pleasure. Refuse to get caught up in a petty discussion that could last awhile.

The affidavit indicated Foutch's speech was slurred, but he's missing several teeth — not the result of the accident — which could have caused the slurring. The officer also failed two field sobriety tests.

Madison County Prosecutor Rodney Cummings said on Monday that an initial hearing date for Foutch could be determined this week, though he wasn't sure if Foutch has an attorney yet.

“I was a police officer for 15 years, and I worked really closely with officers. That's just the way it works. You get to be brothers with those guys. If this officer was having a drug problem, I find it hard to believe that nobody else in that department knew about it,” Cummings said last week.

In his most recent troubles, Foutch was $3,200 behind in rent and was evicted from a home in the 1900 block of Rosewood Drive in August. His former landlord, Robert Smith, said the officer could be difficult to deal with, but there were no indications he was abusing drugs in the home. Erica Manis, Foutch's girlfriend and passenger on the day of the accident, was also listed in the lawsuit.

Attempts to contact Foutch have been unsuccessful, and Foutch's father declined to comment on the matter. A family member of Erica Manis issued an apology to the Sperry family by email on Wednesday. The statement also indicated the family would be making no further comment on the matter.

Ivy Tech enrollment numbers increase despite challenges

ANDERSON — It's hard to turn on the news these days and not find a story related to higher education. Student loan debt, rising education costs and the sluggish job market are on everyone's radar, and today's college students have more than just their GPAs to worry about.

However, despite these issues and the other challenges facing the higher education industry, Madison County post-secondary institutions are reporting growth and success in their programs and initiatives. According to Kelly Hauflaire, assistant vice president of marketing and communications for Ivy Tech Community College, there were 2,385 students enrolled at Ivy Tech's Anderson campus as of January 14, 2013. "This is a 3 percent increase over the first day of classes last spring term, which equaled 2,310 students," said Hauflaire.

According to Dr. James Willey, vice-chancellor for the Anderson Ivy Tech campus, the increasing enrollment rate is in part due to the high job placement rate for some of their programs, and he hopes to see these high rates continue in 2013. "Graduating with a degree, no matter where it's at, is a wonderful thing," Willey said. "But having a degree in a field with a job and career opportunities is crucial. That's the ultimate goal."

Ivy Tech's dental hygiene program is one example of this success. According to Willey, the program has passing and job placement rates of 100 percent. The college's welding, dental assistance and nursing programs all have similar rates, and Ivy Tech has reported enrollment increases for each of these programs.

But though high job placement rates can entice prospective students, the choice to take on higher education isn't an easy decision, nor is it a cheap one. According to Willey, funding is the num- that 80 percent of students at Ivy Tech's Anderson campus receive financial assistance of some kind, and the school student where they're at. The college has an open enrollment policy—mean- choose prospective students from a pool and don't require certain test scores—and it offers tutoring and assistance for those who need a refresher."Coming back to school and being successful is intimidating for some people," Willey said. "We welcome anyone that wants to give it their best effort, and we'll do what we way."

Approximately 60 percent of students at Ivy Tech's Anderson campus need some type of remedial assistance before beginning their accredited courses, and according to Willey, the college has doubled the amount of money it has spent on remediation in the last five years.

Ivy Tech's personalized approach to higher education is part of what drew Krista Morris there. She's currently enrolled in the LPN nursing program at the Anderson campus, and although Morris studied at Ball State prior to enrolling at Ivy Tech, she said that Ivy Tech is a much better fit for her. "Ball State was just too big for me," she said. "At Ivy Tech, my nursing classes have about 19 people in them. I get more hands-on experience and attention from teachers."

Anderson Sertoma Club boosts community programs

The Mayors Cup go-kart race is an annual event tied to the Little 500 Festival.

ANDERSON — The Anderson Sertoma Club continues its SERvice-TO-MANkind in the community through sponsorships, fundraisers, volunteer hours and more.

Terry Riggins, Sertoma chairman of the board, said the organization sponsors the Gateway Association and the Special Olympics, along with hosting the Freedom Essay Contest. The group even sponsors a local little league team and gives to charities. The list of services to the community was long.

"The Freedom Essay contest is great. The kids write about what freedom means to me. You should see some of the things these kids write," Riggins said. "There's a traveling trophy that stays with the winning school with the winner's name on it. It's a really nice thing that Sertoma does."

The Sertoma Club also hosts the annual Mayor's Cup Grand Prix go-kart race, an event the club is most recognized for. It's also a favorite event of Riggins and other club members.

"Oh, about 19 years ago we started the Mayor's Cup Race," Riggins said. "Don Hartman came to me and asked me to do a race."

Hartman, chairman of the Mayor's Cup and fellow Sertoma Club member, said he knew Riggins was the right guy. This May, the Mayor's Cup Race will leave the parking lot and return to the city streets of downtown. The club will host numerous other events throughout the day as well.

"It's going to be really exciting and entertaining," Hartman said. "I'm sure it will be popular this year too because it's back where it started — on the streets."

The annual race has also been a way for the Sertoma Club to help the band boosters who are hired to help with setup.

To date, the race has helped the Sertoma club raise more than $200,000, said Riggins.

"Some years are better than others," Hartman said. "We've had years where the race raised $20,000 and then we've seen only $4,000."

The annual race led the club to start a unique fundraiser. Riggens said the club purchased 440 plastic barriers and a semi-trailer five years ago. In 2011, the group purchased 400 more and an additional trailer.

"We went for grants and spent a lot of money," Riggins said. "But we rent the barriers out for other races. This year will be the first time they've been used downtown."

As the Anderson Sertoma Club looks ahead to the future, the aging members see a problem.

"We're going on 54 years. We need some young blood members," Riggins said. "Contact us. Join us and help with our service club."

Riggins said that in the younger years of the club, it had more than 100 members. When it was founded in August of 1959, the member response was so great that Anderson Sertoma Club was awarded No. 1 First Year club in all of Sertoma. The hope is to renew those numbers.

"The main problem we have is the need for young people," Hartman said. "We started the go-kart race here, and we are now 19 years older. It's a lot of work to keep that going."

Joyce Hudson

ANDERSON

Joyce Hudson, Associate Professor and Dental Hygiene Program Chair at Ivy Tech Community College, is well-acquainted with the power of education to alter the course of a life. As a Registered Dental Hygienist, she has spent much of her career teaching the profession to others.

She has seen a few changes.

“Early in my teaching career, you were working with young students, right out of high school,” she said. “But now it is different...you might have a first generation college student - the first in the family to earn a degree. Or a young mom who is worried about her financial aid refund arriving before she runs out of gas, or groceries.”

Hudson is deeply moved by the struggles of the many non-traditional students at the college. “This is a tough program. A single parent will leave here, go home and study, take care of kids. I don’t know how they do it.”

Still, Hudson encourages students, even those in the most challenging circumstances, to do well. “We try to help them understand balance. The balance between the needs of the program and the needs of the family. They do need support and we remind them it is OK to ask for help, to build a support mechanism.”

Hudson explained the closeness that develops. “We form a bond. We get really close - in this environment we are sometimes together morning, noon and night, literally.”

And it is there, in the classroom of non-traditional students, where she has seen the most profound impact of an education program that combines encouragement, support, and training.

“The first week the students have ideas about what they want to accomplish. At week two they realize how much is involved in the program. But by the end of the first year...well, they’ve gone light years beyond what they thought they could achieve.”

Hudson said that she has students who have come in with little self-confidence and over the course of time “step up” and became leaders in the classroom.

Hudson stressed the importance of leadership ability.

“Women are assuming more leadership roles. Even 10 years ago it was more awkward in a supervisory situation with female versus male. But now a female in a leadership role is common.”

Hudson feels that education is the key that unlocks a door to a different life for many students. “Some of them come here thinking they are not smart enough or good enough. But through education and support they build professionalism, and gain self-confidence and leadership skills. They take that back to their church. They take that to a civic project. Recently 11 out of 14 of our second year students participated in Anderson Family Dental’s free treatment day. They were instrumental in making the day a success.”

Hudson was nominated by Dr. Jim Willey, Vice Chancellor of the Anderson campus.

Hudson said, “I feel humbled that Dr. Willey nominated me for the work here in the program and very honored to be a finalist for the prestigious Athena award.”

ANDERSON

The heart and soul of The Anderson Center for the Arts can be found within executive director Deborah Stapleton. Since 1980 Deborah has been at the helm of the nonprofit that has been described as one of the jewels of Anderson's downtown district. Under her leadership the Center for the Arts has undergone a major renovation and witnessed the creation of the children's hands-on exhibit.

The 58-year-old Stapleton was born in Kansas City and received her bachelor's degree in sociology and museum studies at Anderson University. She did her graduate work at the University of Oklahoma and finished her Master's degree from Ball State in Executive Development in Public Service. She also has a certification in arts administration from Sangamon Institute in Illinois.

Prior to coming back to Anderson in 1979, Deborah worked at the Montgomery County Historical Society in Dayton, Ohio as an assistant to the director of the Col. Robert Patterson historic homestead.

Mid-way through her tenure as director came the opportunity to do an extensive adaptive reuse of the former Carnegie library. She was committed to saving the magnificent historic building. Stapleton and six other leaders enlisted the support of the wider community to restore the old Anderson Public Library and transform it into the Arts Center. With monetary contributions and in-kind donations the job got done. The stunning glass dome was preserved with a donation from Moss Glass. "They dismantled the dome piece-by-piece and took it offsite to be cleaned, re-leaded and then re-installed it." "The results speak for themselves," says Stapleton. "The multi-million dollar restoration was a true collaborative effort."

Stapleton is also dedicated to introducing children to the joys of art. In 1983 The Anderson Center for the Arts was one of the first art museums in the country to install a hands-on exhibit. Stapleton explains, "We got the idea from science museums which are noted for their interactive exhibits. There were so many educational studies showing how much more people learn by doing. I thought why can't we do that in at our museum." "The Passport Gallery" has been an overwhelming success. "I love it when I hear parents say to their children 'It's time to leave, we'll stop at McDonalds.' They have to bribe their kids to leave because they are having so much fun."

Hudson

Donna Hudson celebrated her 80th birthday on Saturday, Aug. 24 with family and friends. She was born in Anderson and retired from Community Hospital where she worked as a surgery nurse.

She is the mother of four children, Bob (Connie) Hudson, Steve (Heather) Hudson, Jeff Hudson, and Linda Hudson. She has five grandchildren and eight great-grandchildren.

The squared-off shape just doesn't look as progressive as the rest of the truck feels.

Overall, though, GMC has done something magical with the new Sierra. It's Jennifer Hudson Roberts works with Highland Middle School seventh-grader Colton Brooks, 13, on acuity testing on Thursday at the school.

Working to get better

Improvements at Highland in place and in action, ACS says

By Dani Palmer
The Herald Bulletin

ANDERSON — With Anderson Community Schools' Improvement Impact Plan in place at Highland, officials are working to improve test scores and student achievement.

Highland Middle School received an "F" in the Indiana Department of Education's grading system for 2012, and so ACS developed the Improvement Impact Plan that includes professional development and an increased focus to maximize student instructional time.

The ultimate goal, ACS officials said, is to increase student achievement.

To help with this goal, the school added two more personnel: Human Resources Manager Eric Creviston as an emergency manager, and Jennifer Hudson Roberts as a consulting teacher.

"Really, in our situation, teachers, administrators and kids are trying to get with it," Roberts said. "It's a process for us and we're working with that."

Roberts provides professional development and supports teachers in any way needed — whether it be going into classrooms to observe and provide ideas, or working with teachers in groups on classroom management and teaching methods.

She's been at Highland for nearly two months now and said progress is going well.

"The biggest thing we're doing is getting data from tests to see where kids are," she said, "to use the information to guide instruction."

Creviston provides support to teachers who have concerns.

Superintendent Felix Chow attributed Highland's poor grade and ISTEP scores to two factors: local responsibility and a measurement that isn't a truly accurate representation.

"The real intent is to help teachers become higher-level performing teachers through training development and coordination," he said.

Principal Nancy Farley said Highland wants successful students and to be a "B" school. She said there shouldn't be any excuses, but that the school and district just have to "dig in and do what it takes."

"I think the biggest issue was pinpointing individual students and what needs were," she said. " ... Now we have names and faces with data."

While Highland is working to improve, Farley said it's still "not an F school."

At a meeting, Chow said he saw one school with 90 percent of students passing ISTEP receive a "C" grade. Farley said she can have a student not pass the ISTEP and yet give Highland points for growth. Individual student growth now factors into the state's grading scale.

The ultimate goal, ACS officials say, is to increase student achievement. To help with this goal, the school added two more personnel.

For example, a 500 in math is passing. If a student received a 425 two years ago and then a 475 last year, the school receives points for growth, Farley said.

But if a student drops a few points even while passing, it could deduct points from the school.

So Highland is focusing on student learning outcomes by breaking kids off into two groups: one with the bottom 25 and top 75 percent of students on ISTEP, and a second group with only the top 75 percent in English to focus on increasing that high growth.

In addition to the Improvement Impact Plan, Farley said data coaches are looking at math and English results from mini-assessments and acuity tests. With the eight-step process, assessments are given every three weeks and tutorial groups, focusing on students needing extra help, are being expanded.

There's also test talks with students, encouraging attendance with rewards like ice cream parties and the Success Academy for students who've fallen behind — some of whom are on the honor roll for first time now, Farley said.

"Our staff has just jumped in, rolled up their sleeves and are on it," she said. "And our students are serious about it."

Farley added she and other administrators from Highland and the central office meet once a week to touch base and discuss what needs to be done.

"Everything we're doing this year is very, very intentional," she said. "That makes a difference."

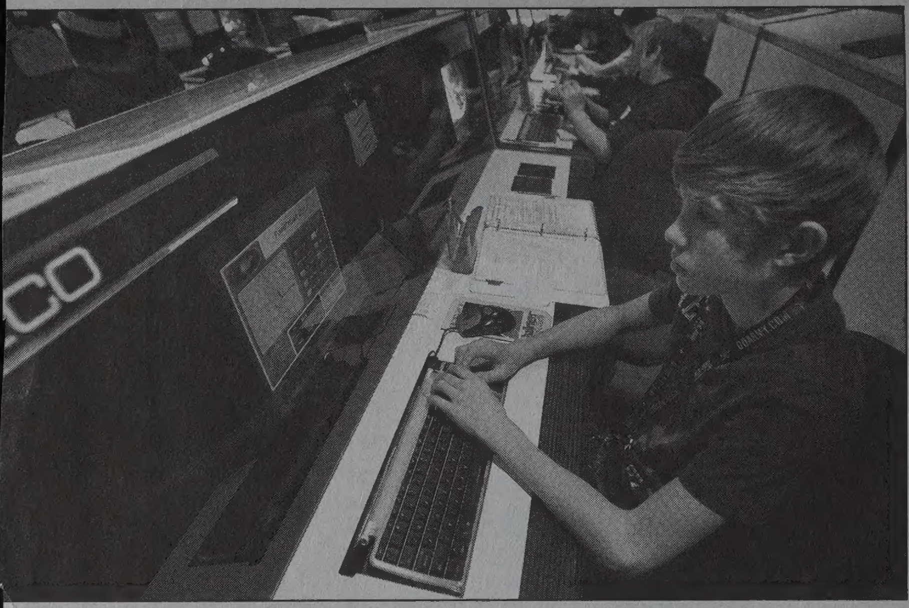
o Challenger Learning Centers in Indian



Kelly Wilkinson / For The Associated Press

Brownsburg East Middle School seventh-grader Wade Overfelt simulates a space nission at the Brownsburg Challenger Learning Center in Brownsburg on Dec. 11.

oo. The Challenger Learng Center opened its doors 1994 as the first of its kind Indiana and the 22nd tionally. Now, there are 48 nters around the globe, including one 18 miles down the road in Decatur Township on the southwest side of Indianapolis.

"I'm still in shock, just like they are," said Cyndy Meier, lead flight director at the Decatur Township center. "They have a fine, fine program."

The Decatur Township center opened in spring 2004 because there were too many groups trying to use the Brownsburg center — up to 275 activities a year.

But it's unusual to have two centers so close together, particularly in a metro area the size of Indianapolis. In fact, the two Challenger centers here are the closest together outside New York City, where four centers are within a 12-mile radius.

Officials say locations are based partially on demand, and the success rate of Brownsburg a decade ago helped fuel plans for a second center.

"At the time, the economy was much better," Meier said. "Brownsburg had a waiting list of schools to do missions, and so the plan was, we would take the runoff from the schools that were on the waiting list. It was never meant to be a competition."

Meier said she doesn't know whether or how her center would play a role in the wake of the Browns-witnesses also told investigators that pilot-activated runway lights were not illuminated when Donald Horan's single-engine Piper Malibu crashed about a mile from the Greensburg Municipal Airport, some 0 miles southeast of Indiaapolis. Those runway ghts were checked after e crash and were found be working properly, the port said.

Those who died in the ash were: Horan, 46; his fe, Barbara, 45; and their ends Stephen Butz, 45, d Denise Butz, 42, all of eensburg, died in the ash. The two couples re returning from Des- Fla.

The preliminary report es that Horan had been cleared to approach the Greensburg airport about 13 minutes before the crash, at a time when witnesses estimated that cloud ceilings were at about 300 feet.

The report says a witness told investigators that he saw Horan's Piper "descend out of the clouds with no perceived pitch change or change in engine noise" just before it plowed into a field. The wreckage came to a rest nearly 300 feet away in a wooded area.

The NTSB's preliminary reports states that "no anomalies" were found during a detailed examination of the aircraft and its engine. But agency spokesman Keith Holloway said Thursday that only means investigators found no initial signs of problems with the aircraft.

"We haven't determined whether everything was working properly and we haven't ruled out anything," Holloway said.

A factual report with detailed crash findings will likely take between six and nine months to complete and the final crash report is expected in 12 to 18 months, he said.

Holloway said investigators in the coming months would be analyzing the plane's wreckage, GPS navigation devices recovered from the craft, witness interviews and reviewing the weather conditions at the time of the crash.

FAMOUS LAW SUITS.

Recalled by an Old Resident—Sam Harden.

He Gives the names of Jurymen Who Decided These Important Cases—Most of the Jurors Are Dead—Interesting Reminiscences.

The "Vermillion" suit now on trial brings out the remark quite often that the jury is a good one. Let the case go as it may the jury is composed of some of the best men in the county. And I think the verdict will be a just one. This suit, with some others I shall speak of, will go down in history as one of the most important law suits ever tried in the county. The first jury called on to sit where life and death was pending was in 1824, in the noted "Indian murder" case which occurred in Adams township, on the Cooper farm, near the head waters of Lick Creek.

The following men composed the jury that hung Bridge, Sawyer and Hudson near Pendleton in 1825. The panel in the first case was Timothy McCarty, Henry VanVoltinburg, David Williams, Nathan Abbot, Wm. McCarty, Peter Deiltz, Joseph Nichols, Wm. Stanley, Griffith Davis, James Scott, Lemuel Anton and Wm. McCartney. Second jury as follows: D. Elliott, Richard Kinnaman, Isaac Brasket, Geo. Sybert, Philip Hobaugh, Wm. A. Penn, Nathan Abbot, Andrew Elsworth, Griffith Davis, Samuel Stinner and Martin Fisher. The third jury was the same as above with only a slight change. Young Bridge was convicted at the same time, but pardoned by Governor Ray. Harper, who was also in the case, got away, son, and on this occasion he made one of the best efforts of his life.

The defense was by attorneys H. D. Thompson and James Sansbury, and was ably done. James Snell was sheriff at th- time and did the official business in like way, assisted by Wm. Roach. White was hung Nov., 1867, in the fair grounds, and is buried in the Catholic cemetery in Anderson.

It is not probable that there is any one of the jury of 1824 living as they would have to be at least 91 years of age.

Of the White jury but three are known to be living Dipboy, Conner and Jones; and of the bond suit jury, 1875, the following are deceased: Isaac Franklin, Samuel Parson, Wm. Whitehead, Wm. Scott and James B. Harter.

DEATH CAME SWIFT

Sudden Demise of a Prominent Glass Blower.

John J. Lorden Falls Dead Upon the Streets of Alexandria Saturday Night—An Autopsy Held and What It Revealed.

Monday, February 12.

John J. Lorden, a leader among the glass blowers of Alexandria, was stricken with paralysis on the streets of that town Saturday evening and in a few hours was dead.

He was very popular among the glass workers of that city, and was a man of marked ability, not only as a glass worker, but as a lecturer and laborer in the cause of union labor.

paralysis and fell to the sidewalk. It was supposed at first that he was intoxicated and the police removed him to the town jail. He continued unconscious until ten o'clock Saturday night when death ensued.

Coroner Armington was notified and he left for Alexandria Sunday morning and held an autopsy over his remains. The post mortem examination showed that several things might have caused his death. His brain was congested, his heart abnormally large, his liver was twice the normal size and his kidneys had wasted away. Either congestion of the brain or fatty degeneration of tho the heart caused his death.

Lorden was born at Cambridge, Mass., and was educated in one of the many schools about Boston. He was a brilliant speaker, and almost idolized by his fellow-workmen. His remains will be prepared for burial, and will be sent East for interment.

Delivery Boy Avoided Wooden Block Street

November 3, 1959

Before Anderson's motor traffic had reached very large proportions, one of the city's smoothest streets was W. 9th, from Jackson to John. It was paved with wooden blocks. Inasmuch as many other streets were stilll unpaved. It would seem that anyone who had an opportunity to travel on 9th would do so. But that was not the case with everyone. Horace H. Hudson remembers that in his early days as a grocery delivery boy he would avoid using 9th, especially during wet weather." The wooden blocks would become slick, and the horse pulling the delivery wagon would slip and fall." he recalls. " We delivery boys had orders to stay away from 9th. It was much safer to drive over muddy streets. " Mr. Hudson began his long career as a delivery boy at the age of 14. His first job was with S. Mauzy, who operated a store at the corner of Nichol and Madison Aves. " I drove a horse and wagon over much of Anderson in delivering groceries for Mr. Mauzy." Mr. Hudson comments. "And at times I even went into the country. Some of those trips were to pick up poultry and other produce from hucksters, whose wagons were too loaded to bring in all of the chickens, turkeys and other farm produce into town. " On several occasions I drove out as far as Hamilton, and at times my delivery wagon would be so full that I would have to walk along the side."

On Meridian St.

Another of Mr. Hudson's early jobs was with the Woods Grocery, which was located on Meridian St. where the Woolworth Store was situated at present. " We kept our horses and wagons at the Lampher Livery Stable, which was located on W. 10th st., west of the Central Christian Church. I remember going to the livery stable early in the morning to get the horse and wagon and then spend from 7 o'clock in the morning until 6 and later in the evening making deleveries. We worked until 10 o'clock and later on Saturday nights. We never stopped until all orders were delivered." A native of Madison County, Mr. Hudson was born on a farm south of Anderson and about a half-mile north of the Hancock county line. His father, the late E. Hudson, was engaged in farming but moved to Anderson when the son was about 9 or 10 years old. Later, the elder Mr. Hudson opened a grocery on Pendleton Ave., a block north of the present store the son has operated for 35 years at 718 W.22nd St. The son was associated with his father for about seven years. Mr. and Mrs. Will Griffith opened a store at Pendleton Ave. and Sherman St. and young Mr. Hudson accepted a job as a clerk there. He had worked at the store about two years when James Seybert acquired the market. Mr. Hudson remained with Mr. Seybert, his future father-in-law, for a while before launching into business for himself. Mr. Seybert later resold to the Griffiths. Mr. Hudson married his employer's daughter, but the romance did not start in the store. A native of the farm, Mr. Hudson returned to farm work for part-time summer employment when he was about 18 or 19 years old and it was while he was working the neighborhood of Seybert's Crossing, southwest of the city, that he met Bertha Seybert. They were married and celbrated their golden wedding anniversary on Sunday, Oct 18, with a family gathering. The marriage date was Oct. 20, 1909. The daughter of a grocer, Mrs Hudson helps her husband in the operation of their store. Their home is next door at 718 W.22nd. Mr. and Mrs. Hudson, members of the First Baptist Church, are the parents of three children, Mrs. Frank Medsker, Mrs. Thomas Richardson and Ray Hudson, all of Anderson. There are three grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Farming Area

Mr. Hudson opened his store on Nov. 5, 1924. Twenty-second St. was unpaved, and the pioneer grocer remembers breaking the front spring on his Model T Ford three times in one winter while traveling over the muddy thoroughfare. He has watched the neighborhood grow from a farming area into a thickly settled residential district. " There were no houses between 22nd St. and the Belt Railroad and from Fairview to Hendricks at the time. Most of the area was covered with water intil a sewer was built." he recalls. " I can remember watching farmers thrash oats in fields south of 22nd between Fairview and Lincoln." Mr. Hudson didn't say it,but his conversation gives you the impression he's just getting a good start in the grocery business.

s legal waters murky lost their driving privileges, Reasoner said.

The July appeals court ruling involves such a case. The defendant was convicted of operating a motor vehicle while his license was suspended. But the appeals court overturned the conviction, saying prosecutors had failed to prove that the Yahama Zuma he was caught driving at 43 mph was a "motor vehicle" under Indiana law. In the 2-1 ruling, the court said the Indiana Legislature had not adequately defined what "maximum design speed" means.

In a dissenting opinion, appeals court Judge John Baker said he thought it was reasonable to infer that the Zuma had a maximum design speed of more than 25 mph since it was clocked going almost 20 miles over that threshold. He cited a 2009 appeals court ruling involving a moped driver with a suspended license caught going 43 mph, up a hill. That conviction stood.

Joel Schumm, an expert on state courts who teaches the law school at Indiana University's Indianapolis campus, predicts the latest case will end up with the Indiana Supreme Court since it has such wide-reaching implications.

The issue could be resolved by the Legislature, but lawmakers have resisted efforts in recent years to impose any more restrictions on moped drivers. Rep. Milo Smith, R-Columbus, who has pushed for legislation to make moped drivers subject to the same laws as motorcycle drivers did make some progress in the last legislative session: He got the issue assigned to a summer legislative study committee, but it's yet to appear on the committee's agenda for its upcoming meetings.

from the other council members. Bibbs cast the lone "no" vote on the transfers.

During the discussion, Crumes asked how many miles were placed on patrol cars being taken out of Madison County. Watters said there was no way to track those miles.

Councilman Greg Graham said that, while the new cars are needed, there has to be a plan developed to replace outdated police cars in the future.

"In a few years, we're going to be facing the same situation," Graham said. "We're fortunate the money is now available."

Broderick said the plan is to earmark $150,000 in the 2018 budget to purchase new cars. The mayor noted that the administration would transfer $200,000 from the budgeted amount for the SWAT (Special Weapons and Tactics) team. That money has not been used this year.

An additional $200,000 was transferred from the insurance costs in the police department budget.

Council members OK'd the transfer of Motor Vehicle Highway Funds in the amount of $100,000 for salaries and $100,000 for insurance to purchase two new tandem dump trucks.

Each truck is expected to cost $164,000.

The city purchased two tandem dump trucks in 2016, but the remainder of the fleet is much older.

'DANCING WITH THE STARS'

Escape from a world seriously out of step

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — You want to dance.

You know you do. Lodged in your La-Z-Boy, you take flight with your fantasies as you watch "Dancing With the Stars." Unbound, you claim the ballroom floor and get yourself into the act.

In your dreams. But dreams fuel TV shows, along with the people who watch them. You watched plumpish, middle-aged John (Cliff the Mailman) Ratzenberger stay alive for six weeks. You've got to figure, anything is possible!

But there's more here than vicarious wish fulfillment. "Dancing" offers you release from a world in chronic disorder. This is a show that insists upon order — order even you can help impose.

Success is all in the timing, which any dancer knows, and "Dancing" was a fluke of grimly opportune timing when it premiered as an instant hit for ABC two summers ago. Instantly it fell into step as a feel-good choreographed contrast to the escalating chaos of the war in Iraq.

The show feels that way more than ever now, completing its fourth season as a welcome diversion. The war goes on and the news is worse. Conveniently, the palliative value of "Dancing With the Stars" seems hand-in-hand with growing public dismay.

On "Dancing," plans are made and put in action. Failure or success is measured, forthrightly, by the panel of three judges. Then plans are modified. As early as the next week (and not, say, next September), you can look for signs of progress.

Best of all, there is blessedly nothing at stake here, beyond bragging rights and that mirror-ball trophy. It's on a grand scale, but "Dancing" is just a stylish way of stepping out, for dancers and viewers alike.

Of course, escapist entertainment in troubled times is nothing new.

This photo, provided by ABC, shows Tom Bergeron, left, host of the network's hit show "Dancing with the Stars" with contestants Laila Ali, a boxing champ and daughter of Muhammad Ali, and her professional dance partner, Maksim Chmerkovskiy. They are among the three remaining pairs in the contest. The final performances air at 8 p.m. Monday with the winning couple announced at 8 p.m. Tuesday.

"Face the Music and Dance," Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers advised in the Depression-era film "Follow the Fleet," one of many musicals that applied an entertaining balm to moviegoers in those painful years.

Not so differently now, TV viewers face the music and "Dancing" with its glamour, romance and family-friendly sex appeal.

It also comes with an added payoff those strictly formulaic movie musicals never could provide: With "Dancing," you get to be surprised by how the story ends ... and even play a role in the outcome!

"Dancing With the Stars," which began its current dance-off in March with 11 stars, is now entering the last phase. This week, former "Beverly Hills 90210" star Ian Ziering was dismissed, leaving three finalists: boxing champ Laila Ali, former 'N Sync member Joey Fatone and Olympic skater Apolo Anton Ohno.

Their final performances will air Monday at 8 p.m. EDT, with the winner announced on Tuesday's show, beginning at 8 p.m.

The winner will be chosen by the onsite jury ("renowned ballroom judge" Len Goodman and dancer/choreographers Bruno Tonioli and Carrie Ann Inaba) in tandem with the votes from you, the viewers: You may not know much about dancing, but you know what you like.

And whom. A personality showcase, "Dancing" gives widespread exposure to "niche" celebs (like NBA Hall of Famer Clyde Drexler — hey, everybody doesn't follow basketball) while giving has-beens a new chance to shine (who remembered Ian Ziering, much less knew he could dance!).

The athleticism is inspiring (and often, um, arousing), especially embodied by the professional dancers with whom the stars are teamed. It is these pros' task not only to be great, but to also make their partners appear great — sometimes against all odds. (To paraphrase the nation's quickstepping ex-secretary of defense: They dance with the partner they have, not the partner they might want or wish to have.)

It's a fascinating collaborative process, unfolding live in front of millions, week after week, and it signals one big difference from Fox's talent search, "So You Think You Can Dance" (returning for a new season Thursday).

"Dancing With the Stars" is all about the give-and-take between a demonstrated expert and someone who, however seasoned as a public person (Leeza Gibbons! Paulina Porizkova!), may not know a fox trot from a paso doble, or even be too swift at putting one foot in front of the other.

As a viewer you can easily identify with these stars: Each of them, raw talent to be molded, is your surrogate. They literally place themselves in the hands of the pros and, often enough, magic happens. Or order emerges from chaos, at least. This helps make good on your dreams.

Girl worries about hurting mom despite past abuse

DEAR ABBY: When I was in third grade, I moved in with my dad because my mother didn't want me anymore. She said, "You'll be going to a foster home if you don't get out of my house right now."

I didn't want to stay with her because she was abusing me. So was her fiance. At the time, I was living in Michigan, and Dad lived in Minnesota. One night, my dad got a call at work from my mom: "Come get her before I put her in a foster home!" So Dad came and picked me up at 3 in the morning. We lived in my dad's hometown in Minnesota for a while, but Dad didn't want me to go to school where we lived, so we moved to Missouri. That's where I am now.

My mother moved back to Minnesota, got married and now has two babies. My problem is she wants me to move back in with her, and so does my aunt, but I don't want to. I said I'd go to her house for the summer to take care of my little siblings. My question is, how am I supposed to say no to my mother without hurting her feelings and say no to my aunt, who I love so much? – CONFUSED IN ST. CHARLES

DEAR CONFUSED: This is something you need to seriously discuss with your father, because I am not at all sure you should be responsible for your little half-siblings, even for the summer. I doubt that your mother has changed much, and I am concerned that you will be nothing more than a free baby sitter.

ABIGAIL
VAN BUREN

Please do not worry about hurting your former abuser's feelings. If you agree to this arrangement, the person more likely to be hurt will be you.

As for your aunt, if your love for her is reciprocated, she can visit you. Or you can visit her. But that visit should not include baby-sitting those children under the circumstances you have described to me.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have just learned that our 9-year-old nephew was molested by a teenage boy over the course of the last 18 months. My brother-in-law is requesting additional family contact, saying that the boy has lost friends and trust and needs us around more often. We live six hours away, and we certainly don't mind seeing him more often.

We have a family event coming up in a few weeks, and this will be the first time we'll see them in person since we found out. I am not quite sure how to treat the boy. Should I tell him I know about it? How do we offer comfort and support? – CONCERNED AUNT IN MASSACHUSETTS

DEAR CONCERNED AUNT: There is no need to tell your nephew that you know what happened. The best way to offer comfort and support would be to treat him the way you always have – be your normal, affectionate, good-humored selves. If the boy wants to confide in you, he will. But you should not bring the subject up or you could embarrass him.

DEAR ABBY: Is there a proper amount of time to wait to send a sympathy card when someone you know suffers a loss? Is it proper to send the card before the funeral, or is it better to wait a week or so? – GEORGE IN SEATTLE

DEAR GEORGE: Customs vary among different cultures. Generally, sympathy cards are sent at the time one hears about the death. However, in some cultures sympathy cards with money enclosed are given to the grieving family at the funeral.

Dear Abby is written by Abigail Van Buren, also known as Jeanne Phillips, and was founded by her mother, Pauline Phillips. Write Dear Abby at www.DearAbby.com or P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, CA 90069.

ASTROGRAPH

SUNDAY, MAY 20, 2007

An extremely stimulating and exciting year could be in the offing for you where your work or career is concerned. Something new that you might be responsible for developing could be on the horizon.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) – When it comes to social involvements, don't allow yourself to be talked into doing anything your common sense says not to. You don't need any further trouble in your life.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) – Don't be influenced by a lot of big talk from associates about how to accomplish large feats. When you watch them actually go after something, you may see them collapse before your eyes.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) – It might be best to stay away from getting involved in any serious jobs, because it isn't likely you'll be able to keep your mind on what you're doing, and a mistake could be costly.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) – Double-check all your financial transactions, especially if what you want to finance is a fascinating new phenomenon. What you're witnessing could be a flash in the pan.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) – One of your greatest problems could be a big case of indecisiveness. Thoughts could flash through your mind at such lightning speed with nothing but confusion and disorientation.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) – It's noble of you to tend to some repairs at home yourself, but, sadly, you could turn out to be the most expensive serviceman in town, especially if you attempt to fix something you're ignorant about.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) – No matter how bad you want to partake in a social activity with friends, if you use funds earmarked for bills and you don't have a good time, you'll end up being sorely unhappy.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) – If you've been having difficulty keeping up with the pace of events lately, your thinking could become very nervous and scattered, so be careful not to make any rash judgment calls.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) – Friends will resent it if you poke your nose into things they wish to keep secret and are none of your business. Don't cross the line between healthy curiosity and being a busybody.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) – If you have any hope of expecting longevity from things you now possess, you'll need to keep your mind on what you're doing when you're handling them. Accidents are possible.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) – Be sure you have your facts straight when making plans with family members, because if you misinterpret what they expect from you and do your own thing, nerves could explode.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) – If your methods and procedures aren't well thought-out before you take action, you will end up being a victim of your own poor planning and create more complications than you resolve.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a stay-at-home mom with a 10-year-old daughter. We live in a complex that houses about 250 people.

I'm a naturally friendly person, but also very private. When the weather is warm, I love having my shades up and my windows open. My daughter enjoys the fresh air, so she's out in the yard often. Because of this, some of my neighbors – possibly bored – take it upon themselves to "pop in" for a visit when they see we're home. I don't invite them over, and I don't want company. This happens more than once a day with the same people.

I have tried making excuses ("I'm in the middle of something," "I'm cooking dinner," "I have company"), but it doesn't work. I have also said, "We're just getting ready to leave," but it soon becomes obvious that we weren't going anywhere. People have gotten mad and they now label me a "snob" — among other things.

I don't want to spend my life in the house hiding with my daughter, but I also don't want to entertain people who come over uninvited. Abby, I am not a snob. I just love doing whatever I'm doing uninterrupted – even if what I'm doing is nothing at all.

Dear Abby

Please help.

It is not rude or snobbish to defend your privacy. You were too nice to them to begin with by making excuses. What y should have said was, "I not up for company right now. Please call to see if I'm free before dropping over next time."

Conference aims to recruit youthful church ministers

By LIZ AUSTIN

AUSTIN, Texas — As the daughter and granddaughter of Presbyterian preachers, Laura Elly Hudson knew plenty about the ministry growing up — mostly that she didn't want any part of it.

The low pay was one reason. And the long hours. Not to mention she was terrified of having to answer the most vexing spiritual questions at the toughest times in people's lives.

Experts say those and other concerns are discouraging young adults from pursuing careers in church ministry and have led to a 20-year decline among mainline denominations in the number of clergy under 35.

Churches, denominations and religious organizations are now trying to reverse that trend to ensure a new generation of pastors are ready to replace the many Baby Boomer ministers preparing to retire.

About 150 college and seminary students are gathering in Austin through Sunday to explore what it means to pastor a church — and what it doesn't. They're participating in a conference sponsored by the Fund for Theological Education, an ecumenical group that tries to recruit and support young ministers.

In Hudson's mind, being a pastor used to mean boring administrative tasks and tangled congregational relationships.

Until she attended last year's conference, she said, she never realized the ministry could let her blend a love of nature and environmental activism with a passion for songwriting. Or that putting on a play could help a pastor open people's hearts to Jesus.

"It really encouraged me to think of ministry as ... not necessarily what you do but it's who you are," said Hudson, a 30-year-old Indiana native who just finished her first year at Austin Presbyterian Theological Seminary.

While the average age of students at American seminaries is going down, graduates are less likely to say they plan to become a church minister, according to the Association of Theological Schools, which accredits Protestant, Roman Catholic and Orthodox graduate schools of theology.

Just half of the men and 40 percent of the women who earned Master of Divinity degrees last year said their first choice after seminary was pastoring a church, a survey conducted by the association found. That's down from 60 percent and 56 percent respectively in 2000.

At the same time, research shows mainline denominations such as the United Methodist Church are experiencing staggering drops in the number of ministers under 35.

A study released this year by the Lewis Center for Church Leadership at the Methodist-affiliated Wesley Theological Seminary found less than 5 percent of fully ordained Methodist pastors are under 35, down from 15 percent two decades ago.

About the same percentage of American Baptist and Episcopal ministers are in their 20s and early 30s, according to data gathered by the researchers.

The problem's cause and effect can be seen in many mainline congregations, where the average worshipper is a woman in her 50s, said Melissa Wiginton, the Fund for Theological Education's vice president of ministry programs and planning.

As fewer young people attend church regularly, fewer consider becoming church pastors, Wiginton said. With fewer young faces in the pulpit, fewer young adults feel connected to church life.

"If we don't have young leaders, it's going to be a loss for all of us," she said.

Congregations and denominations are tackling the problem in a variety of ways, from having tiny clerical robes made to fit American Girl dolls to offering semesters at seminary programs that give college students a peek at graduate school life.

Betsy Neely, 24, of Atlanta, attributes her decision to enroll in Vanderbilt University Divinity School to the semester she spent at a seminary in Chicago.

"I really thrived and came back with a profound sense of call," Neely said.

But she's still trying to figure out whether that call will lead her to church ministry or to other jobs young people are choosing more frequently, such as hospital chaplaincies, mission work or teaching.

At this week's conference, Wiginton and Austin Seminary President Theodore J. Wardlaw hope to show Neely and other participants that churches can change the world behind the leadership of gifted pastors.

"You don't just have to be in the midst of some global hotspot to make a difference," Wardlaw said. "You can also be a part of a parish in which your ministry touches people and you can have an impact on people in ways you can't even calculate."

During a 90-minute jailhouse interview with two Herald Bulletin reporters and a photographer Friday afternoon, Hudson often contradicted herself as she talked about her 23-month-old daughter Paisley.

The Madison Prosecutor's Office has charged Ryan Ramirez, Hudson's 29-year-old boyfriend, with murder in the death of Paisley, and Level 3 felony neglect of a dependent for injuries to Hudson's 3-year-old son. Hudson, 25, is charged with Level 1 felony neglect of a dependent causing death, and Level 3 felony neglect of a dependent causing injuries.

Ramirez and Hudson have given conflicting accounts of what happened the night of Paisley's death. Hudson took Paisley to the hospital after discovering she wasn't breathing, and the toddler was pronounced dead.

During the interview Friday at the Madison County jail, Hudson often contradicted herself:

- She said she had a wonderful relationship with Ramirez, and he was a strong father figure for the children — until she realized she'd brought a "monster" into her life.
- The bruises and other injuries to her daughter immediately obvious to anyone with whom she came in contact — except Hudson herself — were caused, Hudson said, by her son, who was having behavioral problems. At other points during the interview, she said her son was loving and protective toward Paisley.
- She and Ramirez fought constantly in the weeks preceding Paisley's death, Hudson said, and she was considering leaving him, in part because she caught him texting another woman.

Kayla Hudson talks to The Herald Bulletin during an interview at the Madison County Jail on Friday. Hudson's 23-month-old daughter Paisley died a week ago.

When asked whether she would expect others to believe her answers to the interview questions, Hudson stared meekly at the floor, hesitated and then said no.

Medical authorities said Paisley died from a blow to her head and two lacerations to her liver that caused internal bleeding. There were indications of other injuries, too. Her older sibling suffered injuries, as well, including a broken wrist, and underwent treatment at Indiana University Health Riley Hospital for Children.

Paternal grandmother: 'I suspected something'

Paisley's father sentenced to work release for stalking

BY KEN DE LA BASTIDE
THE HERALD BULLETIN

ANDERSON — The paternal grandmother of Paisley Hudson said she suspected abuse during a June visit.

Dannette Fee said Friday her son Tayler Beemer is the father of Paisley, who died on July 27. She said Beemer had an on-and-off relationship with Kayla Hudson.

Her son learned of Paisley's death while incarcerated at the Madison County Community Corrections Complex, according to Fee.

On the same day his mother was demonstrating outside the Madison County Government Center, Beemer was sentenced to 18 months in work release on a charge of stalking by Madison Circuit Court Division 3 Judge Thomas Newman Jr.

Don Knight | The Herald Bulletin

Dannette Fee, paternal grandmother of Paisley Hudson, is interviewed at Citizen's Plaza Park where people were protesting DCS for a second day.

Beemer pleaded guilty to the charge through a plea agreement.

Beemer was convicted in 2016 on charges of neglect of a dependent involving Paisley's older brother and possession of a syringe, according to court documents.

He received a suspended two-year, 182-day sentence on the charge.

Madison County Prosecutor Rodney Cummings said the neglect charge against Beemer in 2016 was for using drugs in the presence of a minor.

Tayler Beemer

Fee, along with other demonstrators, is unhappy with the way the Indiana Department of Child Services has handled this and other cases.

Fee wants to push for passage of legislation in Indiana, to be known as "Paisley's Law," to protect children in the future.

Fee said she last saw her grandchildren on June 6 when Hudson brought them to her house.

She said Hudson's son looked "concentration camp skinny" and questioned her about possible malnourishment.

"Paisley seemed happy at first," Fee said. "I did see some bruising. She had a healing black eye that I questioned."

Hudson told Fee that the older brother caused the black eye.

pelled the night of Paisley's death. Hudson took Paisley to the hospital after discovering she wasn't breathing, and the toddler was pronounced dead.

During the interview Friday at the Madison County jail, Hudson often contradicted herself:

- She said she had a wonderful relationship with Ramirez, and he was a strong father figure for the children — until she realized she'd brought a "monster" into her life.

Friday. Hudson's 23-month-old daughter Paisley died a week ago.

- The bruises and other injuries to her daughter immediately obvious to anyone with whom she came in contact — except Hudson herself — were caused, Hudson said, by her son, who was having behavioral problems. At other points during the interview, she said her son was loving and protective toward Paisley.
- She and Ramirez fought constantly in the weeks preceding Paisley's death, Hudson said, and she was considering leaving him, in part because she caught him texting another woman.

When asked whether she would expect others to believe her answers to the interview questions, Hudson stared meekly at the floor, hesitated and then said no.

Medical authorities said Paisley died from a blow to her head and two lacerations to her liver that caused internal bleeding. There were indications of other injuries, too. Her older sibling suffered injuries, as well, including a broken wrist, and underwent treatment at Indiana University Health Riley Hospital for Children.

Paternal grandmother: 'I suspected something'

Paisley's father sentenced to work release for stalking

BY KEN DE LA BASTIDE
THE HERALD BULLETIN

ANDERSON — The paternal grandmother of Paisley Hudson said she suspected abuse during a June visit.

Dannette Fee said Friday her son Tayler Beemer is the father of Paisley, who died on July 27. She said Beemer had an on-and-off relationship with Kayla Hudson.

Her son learned of Paisley's death while incarcerated at the Madison County Community Corrections Complex, according to Fee.

On the same day his mother was demonstrating outside the Madison County Government Center, Beemer was sentenced to 18 months in work release on a charge of stalking by Madison Circuit Court Division 3 Judge Thomas Newman Jr.

Dannette Fee, paternal grandmother of Paisley Hudson, is interviewed at Citizen's Plaza Park where people were protesting DCS for a second day.

Beemer pleaded guilty to the charge through a plea agreement.

Beemer was convicted in 2016 on charges of neglect of a dependent involving Paisley's older brother and possession of a syringe, according to court documents.

He received a suspended two-year, 182-day sentence on the charge.

Madison County Prosecutor Rodney Cummings said the neglect charge against Beemer in 2016 was for using drugs in the presence of a minor.

Prison inmates help train service dogs

BY HALEY COOK
CNHI NEWS INDIANA

ZIONSVILLE — Man's best friend earned that moniker for a reason. Dogs can assist humans in a variety of ways and sometimes the unique companionship alone can be healing.

Zionsville resident Jillian Ashton is executive director of a unique service dog program based in Indianapolis.

The Indiana Canine Assistance Network (ICAN) pairs future service dogs with inmates in prisons throughout the state for training. After training is complete, dogs are placed with children with autism, adults with mobility disorders, teens and adults with diabetes, people in rehabilitation and hospital settings, or with veterans who suffer from post-traumatic stress disorder.

ICAN is the only accredited service dog training program based in Indiana. The program is unique because it charges only $1,600 for the dog but then covers the care of the dog as long as it's in service.

The program also helps inmates because they learn about trust, responsibility, compassion, confidence and love — things they might not have experienced growing up, Ashton said.

Several factors determine whether a prisoner is allowed to care for a dog. They have to have been in the system for a certain amount of time; earn a GED if they don't already have it; be working in the prison; be recommended; and show that they are working toward change and have goals.

Organizers hope this is a learning experience for inmates and they will grow and learn through the process.

Ashton started 17 years ago as a volunteer for the program. She has since been on the board of directors and is now in her fifth year as executive director.

"It was a program that I had passion for as a volunteer," she said.

The program is not funded through the state. Funding comes from events, special grants and support.

"It tells you that we have a loyal base of supporters and that continues to grow," Denise Sierp, assistant network director of development and outreach, said.

Currently, the program is in prisons across Indiana. At one time they can have up to 60 dogs in the system.

Dog breed plays a large part in selection. The breeds have been studied by expert breeders and veterinarians to find which breeds work best. ICAN has found success with crosses between golden retrievers and Labradors. There has also been success with pure golden retrievers, pure labs and a few labradoodles.

ICAN gets 95 percent of their dogs from a national breeding co-op, and the other 5 percent comes from a very small group of trusted breeders.

Individuals can sponsor a dog for $5,000. With that money, they can track the dog's journey and receive naming rights.

Ashton said ICAN receives support from all over Boone County, and she recently received her fundraising management certification from the Boone County Community Foundation. This certification helps her to better lead her staff and their fundraising efforts.

"I believe every dog's middle name should be Grace," Ashton said.

The program brings two people who would likely never meet together. People don't care about what the inmate did or what the recipient's disability is, explained Ashton.

"All that is wiped away by the dog," she said.

Fee said Hudson's son looked out for his sister and loved her.

"Many times we questioned the cuts and bruises," she said, "but never this type of abuse."

Fee said she contacted DCS anonymously.

"I felt in my heart that I needed to talk, but was scared to death I would put them in more danger in light of the way the (Harlan) Haines case was handled," she said. "I suspected something and reported it."

Fee said she witnessed abuse of the children when Hudson was living alone with the children.

"There were black eyes or healing black eyes," she said. "I didn't see them very often."

Fee said she was treated rudely by employees of the Madison County office of the Indiana Division of Child Services and was not informed of Paisley's death.

She said Hudson deceived her when she was dating her son.

"She's a very good actress," Fee said, "a Meryl Streep quality actress."

Fee said there were people who knew about the abuse and didn't do anything.

"If I saw the crazy amount of abuse like I've seen in the pictures, I would have reported it," she said.

Hudson said the boy broke his wrist tripping over a box fan at the Red Roof Inn sometime in mid-July. Hudson said Friday she never took the boy to see a doctor. She said Ramirez sought advice from a person at a drug store and thought that, since swelling had gone down, the boy would be OK.

The real reason Hudson didn't take her son to the hospital? She was scared that her son would be taken from her.

Last year, Paisley was treated at Peyton Manning Hospital for Children for pneumonia, and the Department of Child Services became involved. And there were earlier contacts with agency caseworkers, involving the boy's father, Phoenix Huffman.

"I'm not going to lie to you," Hudson said Friday. "I had the DCS case with Paisley, and that's what I was scared of. I did not want them to think anything was going on."

Hudson was born in Greenfield when her mother was 16 years old. She never really knew her biological father, she said.

She lived with her grandparents in Shirley until she was five or six years old, and then moved to Anderson with her mother and stepfather. She has one younger biological brother, a half-sister and a stepbrother, she said.

Hudson attended Anderson High School but never earned her degree, she explained, because her mother pulled her out of school after her junior year.

Since then, she's worked mostly as a waitress in Anderson, most recently at Buffalo Wild Wings, and before that, Applebee's.

Hudson said she met Ramirez at Buffalo Wild Wings in February and they began dating.

She was living in Middletown at the time. Her lease was up in March, and she continued living there until May, when she and Ramirez decided to live together. They were staying at the motel until they could raise enough money for a house, Hudson said.

"The whole time I was a single parent, I longed for (the children) having a father figure in their life," she recounted. "All I wanted for them was the perfect family."

She thought Ramirez was that man. What she didn't know when she first met Ramirez was that he already had four children by two different women. He initially told Hudson about only one child, she said.

He seemed to love the children, however, so she wasn't too concerned.

Hudson contends she was blinded by love and had found a man who was good for her family.

"I wanted to come out and speak because I didn't want to stay in hiding," she said of her consent to do the Friday interview. "I want my son to know that I love him a lot, and I miss him very much."

Hudson said she will never forgive Ramirez, and she asks for forgiveness from her daughter.

"I'd tell her that I'm sorry. I didn't see the signs . . . And I trusted him."

BSU to keep name of Papa John's founder on program

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MUNCIE — The Indiana alma mater of the founder of Papa John's says it will keep his name on a school business program despite controversy over his use of a racial slur last month.

Ball State University's trustees chairman said Friday it accepted John Schnatter's apology and will continue its support of the John H. Schnatter Institute for Entrepreneurship and Free Enterprise.

Schnatter is a 1983 Ball State graduate. The center was created in 2016 after he and the Charles Koch Foundation gave Ball State $3.25 million.

Ball State trustees chairman Rick Hall says Schnatter's action wasn't derogatory, but was improper.

The University of Louisville is removing Schnatter's name from a similar program, while Purdue University officials have been considering what to do with an economic research center named for him.
